FROM HORSE'S MOUTH

LUCERNE, Que. (CP) — The local police driving record has prompted one town councillor to suggest a return to saddle horses.

Milton Moore, head of the town police commission, told council Monday that police car drivers have had so many accidents in the last 16 months that cruisers have an average life-span of about two months.

Councillor Henri Laflamme said the town may not be able to get insurance for the cruisers because of the high accident rate.

"Perhaps we should go back to saddle horses," said Councillor Brian Smith.

TELEVISION THEFT AN INSIDE JOB

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Doris Coulson was so annoyed at the fact her two sons, aged eight and five, wanted to watch television all the time that she threatened to send the set back to the store.

So when two men came to the Coulson home and said they wanted the TV set, the boys told them to take it.

"I was stunned," said Mrs. Coulson when she reported the theft to police.

Alberta Ladles Royalty Cash

EDMONTON (CP) — Homeowners, renters and municipal governments will be the beneficiaries of a new property tax reduction plan announced today by the Alberta government.

Under the plan the average homeowner will get a tax rebate of up to $216, renters will be able to deduct up to $100 from their provincial income tax and municipalities will receive more assistance money than they ever have before.

The province will pay all the costs of hospital and local health unit requisitions, 90 per cent of all municipal social assistance costs and provide $11.5 million in unconditional assistance grants and $20 million in incentive grants to municipalities.

The money for the tax reduction program, $46 million in the first year of operation, will come from increased oil and gas royalties.

The government earlier this year increased crude oil taxes by $70 million a year and took steps to increase the wellhead price of natural gas, a move which was also designed to increase the provincial take from the petroleum industry.

Premier Peter Lougheed told a news conference that the plan, put together after a year's study by a government committee, is designed to "offset the impact of inflation," particularly on middle and lower-income families.

Cheap Energy Days Over

TORONTO — The price of natural gas will rise sharply in Ontario as a backlash from the current U.S. energy crisis slopes over into Canada, a legislative committee warned in that province Monday.

The committee also warned that the days of "abundant, cheap energy" are over for Ontario which is dependent on out-of-province sources for 80 per cent of its energy supplies.

As one result of the committee's warnings, Premier William Davis will fly to Edmonton Wednesday to discuss a proposed hike in natural gas prices for out-of-province consumers by Alberta. According to the committee report the increases would double the price of fuel in Ontario.

Davis will be accompanied by former provincial treasurer Darcy McKeough, appointed Monday as his special adviser on energy matters.

McKeough left the provincial cabinet late last year in the wake of a controversy concerning financial interest in a subdivision plan in his home riding.

Following the Alberta talks, one of McKeough's main duties will be to study another suggestion of the committee that the province establish a Ministry of Energy to develop and recommend energy policies to the cabinet.

The committee pointed out three major new sources of supply in the report: nuclear power, the Athabasca oil sands and Canadian frontier resources.

The share of energy supplied by nuclear power will rise from 6 per cent in the 1970s to 10 per cent by 1990 and 24 per cent by 1999, the report said.

Natural gas should supply about 25 per cent by the end of the same period, slightly more than it provides now.

The energy supplied through oil will decrease slightly to 38 per cent of the total.

The Canadian nuclear reactor system now is recognized as one of the world's most promising, the report said.

It singled out outstanding performance of the 22 million-kilowatt nuclear station at Pickering.

Canada's natural-uranium, heavy-water reactors produce more than twice as much electricity from each pound of uranium mined as the enriched-uranium reactors of the United States.

Public Opinion Sought

CIL Properties Ltd. today unveiled several alternative proposals for redevelopment of the Inner Harbor property now occupied by Baco Paints. Above is one possible project.

Developers of the $10 million hotel-apartment project to be built on the Baco Paint site on the Inner Harbor regard this week's unveiling of their various design ideas as a kind of "advance public hearing."

Plans, sketches and models of several development concepts drawn up by CIL Properties Ltd. will be presented Thursday and Friday at the McPherson Playhouse lobby, with a view to getting maximum public reaction.

"Really what we're doing is reversing the usual procedure," vice-president Stanley Kwok told reporters today.

"We're saying to the public long before we present any firm proposal to the council, 'these are some of our ideas — what do you think of them?'"

Kwok and CIL Properties president John D'Eath gave a preview of the public presentation at a press conference at The Empress.

D'Eath said the various schemes which will be on display are not a definitive list of alternatives, but only very tentative proposals to give some idea of what could be built on the seven-acre site and to find out what the public's preferences are.

Bank Job Blown By Buck

AMHERST, N.S. (CP) — There was a break-in at a Royal Bank of Canada branch here early today, but police gave up their chase when the culprit raced towards a marsh at the edge of town.

Police said they got a call from the bank caretaker when he showed up for work this morning and found the plate glass front door smashed.

But all police found in the building when they arrived was a badly frightened deer. The animal eluded his captors and escaped through the broken door.

One comment was: "We don't know whether it was a buck looking for dough or a doe looking for bucks."

Storm Hits Mideast

BEIRUT (AP) — Heavy snow brought road and railway traffic to a standstill in many parts of the Middle East today. Highways and rail lines between Lebanon, Syria, Jordan and Iraq were closed by what officials described as "the worst snow storm since the turn of the century."

New Peace Bid

BEIRUT (AP) — President Anwar Sadat of Egypt has begun a new round of diplomatic maneuvering aimed at breaking the Arab-Israeli deadlock. Al-Ahram, the semi-official Cairo newspaper, says Sadat's meeting last week with President Tito of Yugoslavia marked the start of a new campaign in which the non-aligned countries will play a major role.

WASHINGTON - B.C.

Joint Curbs on Spills

Special to the Times

OLYMPIA, Wash. — B.C. and Washington state have agreed to establish the legislative machinery to co-ordinate pollution control in border waters, it was announced here Monday by Premier Dave Barrett and Washington Governor Dan Evans.

The announcement was made at a joint news conference following meetings between the two cabinets.

Barrett and Evans said each jurisdiction had agreed to establish a legislative committee to co-ordinate pollution control methods and standards, particularly dealing with oil pollution control.

Barrett, who is accompanied by nine members of his cabinet, will conclude the two-day visit to the state capital with an address today to the Washington state legislature.

In announcing the agreement, the premier conceded the province is far behind Washington in its approach to pollution control.

"We do not have the tremendous facilities that Washington state has; in being able to call on a well-equipped and well-staffed coast guard," said Barrett.

"We are essentially still a pioneering province, which does not have the capability of mobilizing its resources that Washington state or the American federal government has."

"We intend to establish a legislative committee in our own legislature to immediately catch up to where Washington state is," said Barrett.

Despite the consensus between the two leaders on a method for joint action to deal with potential oil spills, there was an obvious difference of opinion on the threat posed to the west coast by shipment of Alaskan oil to the refinery at Cherry Point.

Evans said in effect he believes shipment of oil to the Washington state refinery has already reached its maximum capacity. The volume of oil shipment into Puget Sound would probably not appreciably increase even when Alaskan supertankers start plying the coast.

The Republican governor suggested the "major share" of Alaskan shipments will go to other American ports, possibly on the east coast.

"If some of it (Alaskan oil) comes in to the Pacific Northwest or Pacific northwest ports, it will not be so much in the nature of an increase but a replacement for foreign crude," that may be coming in at the present time.

"I do not anticipate... that there is going to be a massive increase in shipment of crude oil into the Puget Sound basin to Arco's refinery or any other... as a result of completion of the Alaskan pipeline," Evans said.

The governor told the news conference that his administration would look skeptically on any effort to establish refinery capacity to market petroleum products outside the Pacific Northwest. He said the refinery at Cherry Point is a facility to serve only the northwest market.

Replying to questions from reporters, Barrett conceded the implication of supertanker shipments from Alaska was an area of disagreement between himself and governor Evans.

"I feel a terrible sense of frustration in dealing with my own federal government, in the lack of its aggressiveness in dealing with this problem," the premier said.

"I can appreciate Governor Evans' situation and his problems, but ours is different and our problems are different."

"We have a dreadful fear of a major catastrophe striking

LUNOKHOD PROWLS MOON

MOSCOW (CP) — An unmanned Soviet spaceship made a soft landing on the moon today and put out a 1,848-pound moon rover that sent television pictures back to the earth.

The Soviet news agency Tass, said the spaceship, Luna 21, landed on the eastern fringe of the Sea of Serenity, inside the Lemnognier Crater.

The self-propelled Lunokhod 2 rolled down the gangway to the lunar surface and moved about.

Its running gear and control systems were checked by the ground crew, and "television pictures of the landing stage and the lunar landscape were received," Tass said.

Lunokhod 2 will continue the work of Lunokhod 1, a 1,663-pound moon vehicle that spent 10 months exploring the lunar surface in 1970-71.

Lunokhod 2 now will remain stationary until Thursday recharging its chemical power supply with the help of a solar battery. Then it will go ahead with its program.

Ottawa Accepts Postal Settlement

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government announced Monday its acceptance of a conciliation board proposal for settlement of the long-simmering postal dispute.

The board recommended a 63-cent-an-hour increase in postal wages, which now are $3.69 an hour for postal clerks and $3.54 an hour for letter carriers.

PCs Flail Government On 'Illegal UIC Funds'

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative MPs hammered away today at over-the-ceiling financing by the Liberal government of the unemployment insurance fund, contending repeatedly that the government broke the law.

Despite repeated questioning of Treasury Board president C. M. Drury in the Commons miscellaneous estimates committee, they were unable to learn when expenditures by the fund last fall topped the $890 million ceiling set by Parliament in legislation governing unemployment insurance.

Drury, who insisted the government acted legally in providing special warrants giving the fund a total of $454 million above the $890 million ceiling, said he would determine the date when the ceiling limit was exceeded and provide it to the committee.

The Conservatives also suggested the auditor-general watchdog over government spending, be called before the committee to give his views on proper use of special warrants.

A decision on this will be made later.

On Monday, the New Democratic Party maintained its relationship with the government, assuring defeat of a Conservative non-confidence motion despite Social Credit support.

The 31-member NDP leader David Lewis called the motion, attacking government handling of unemployment and inflation, Conservative shadowboxing.

Lewis said it did nothing to ensure that a Liberal or Conservative government would do anything about high food costs.

The NDP would wait until the government had a chance to put legislation before Parliament before making any move that might spell its end.

Social Credit leader Rael Caouette said his party supported the motion because it had "something definite, something precise" to say.

Williams Pledges Crackdown on Logging

A crackdown by the provincial government on the B.C. logging industry is imminent, Resources Minister Bob Williams indicated Monday.

Logging practices are "not what they should have been," he said, and forest industry guidelines laid down last fall have been ignored.

To facilitate this new approach, he said, the provincial Fish and Wildlife Branch will be "beefed up" with increased budget and staff. The problem of salmon spawning stream protection will be tackled more effectively as a result, he indicated.

Detailed long-range planning would replace the traditional fish and wildlife role of dealing with waterways problems as "firefighters," Williams said, and the department would have to carry out better policing of the logging industry and others than in the past.

Williams' comments at a press conference followed an all-day visit Sunday to stretches of the Indian River and other streams in the Tofo area, to investigate complaints of logging debris clogging fish-bearing streams.

Williams said it was obvious the charges of careless logging practices, raised by the Save Our Salmon Committee, the Sierra Club and other groups in a joint protest last week, were "legitimate."

There was no doubt at all that salmon would be affected, he added.

"There's no excuse for some of the practices. When you hear of fallers privately contacting people out of the industry and saying they are sickened by what they are ordered to do it gives an idea of the kind of concern that exists throughout the community."

HALT CALLED
In response to the concern voiced last week, Williams called a halt to logging in the upper Indian River area by Millstream Logging, a subcontractor to B.C. Forest Products Ltd.

Stressing the need for closer liaison between the fish and wildlife branch, the B.C. Forest Service and the federal fisheries authority, Williams said this would be a continuing process and not just a "one-shot" effort.

The whole question of stream protection in relation to logging practices, in all watersheds of the province, would have to be studied. And in this the fish and wildlife branch would play "a more significant role" than it has up to now.

"The fish and wildlife people over the past six years have operated as firemen. They've been putting out fires. This (the Tofo area situation) was a fire," Williams said.

In answer to a question, he admitted that policing presents a difficult problem, and said one solution might be to have helicopter patrols of vital waterways.

Williams told reporters he was "a little unhappy" at the lack of initiative shown by the federal department of the environment in dealing with the specific situation in the Tofo area, where some log jams date back 20 years.

"Fisheries is the one constitutional piece of ground the federal government has in terms of the environment and they were not standing on it in this particular instance," he said.

SPRING CLEANING SET

A full-time expert will work out of city hall to help downtown Victoria get a pre-tourist season paint-up and clean-up.

According to city council planning committee chairman Ald. Sam Bawlf, the expert will also take an aggressive approach to the rehabilitation of old buildings.

The city planning department was briefed to see if they could reshuffle staff and assign someone, or whether the city would have to hire extra personnel.

The move was encouraged by a letter from T. G. Denny, chairman of the beautification committee of the Downtown Business Association.

Denny said "a fine start" made in 1965 to follow the example of the city of Norwich, England, petered out with the departure of the co-ordinator "who had the ability to sell city hall plans and ideas."

"Our wishful thinking was that refurbishing and paint-up would continue once the way and pattern had been shown," Denny said.

"As we all know now this did not happen and whole downtown blocks in Victoria that once looked smart and spotless became drab and dirty."

"It is obvious that we need a salesman to draw the unkempt condition of these premises to the attention of tenants and owners and to intelligently guide them and inspire them to take action," Denny said.

Bawlf said today: "Springtime is the obvious time to get moving on this."

NEW DEAL SET FOR UNEMPLOYED

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal health and manpower departments will co-operate with provincial and municipal welfare offices in a new plan to provide better service to the unemployed.

Manpower Minister Robert Andras and Health Minister Marc Lalonde made the announcement Tuesday in a letter to provincial welfare ministers.

They said the co-operation is needed to ensure best possible manpower services are provided to people who want to work, but whose requirements extend beyond the present range of manpower counselling, training, mobility and placement activities. The co-operation will work through joint meetings, case conferences and a team approach to co-ordinate services, the ministers said.

There also will be more federal money for voluntary and community agencies to extend manpower services and programs to groups experiencing exceptionally high unemployment.

Another new measure will subsidize employment for hardcore unemployed and give them the opportunity to re-enter the work world through pilot projects similar to local initiatives projects.

VIETNAM

States have reached agreement on the release of all U.S. prisoners of war within 60 days after a peace treaty is signed.

The story cites North Vietnamese sources in Paris as saying Hanoi and Washington have agreed on a compromise solution to the prisoner question, in which Saigon would release all its military prisoners in exchange for — and at the same time as — both North Vietnam and the Viet Cong released all the POWs that they hold.

Saigon sources also said North Vietnam and the United States have agreed on the size of an international force to supervise a ceasefire.

South Vietnamese sources said the new draft still left unresolved such basic Saigon demands as the withdrawal of all North Vietnamese troops from South Vietnam and restoration of the demilitarized zone between North and South.

The U.S. embassy indicated there would be further meetings between Gen. Alexander Haig and Thieu and said the schedule of President Nixon's special emissary was "open ended."

Meanwhile, sharp fighting was reported today in contested areas at both ends of South Vietnam as Saigon forces and Communists battled to gain or hold territory in advance of a ceasefire.

U.S. air support for South Vietnamese ground forces continued following President Nixon's order suspending all bombing and other offensive operations against North Vietnamese territory.

U.S. planes also continued combat operations in Laos and Cambodia.

Spill Curbs Planned

our coast with an oil tanker spill.

"We talk of spills as inevitable. We do not have a sensible, rational, long-term traffic policy in terms of controlling shipping on our coast."

Among other issues discussed by Barrett and Evans and members of their cabinets as a two-hour meeting Monday were international control of the salmon fishery, joint tourist promotion, the Skagit River valley and Point Roberts.

The governor has previously sided with B.C. on the Skagit Valley issue and Barrett expressed the hope that this opposition will persuade the city of Seattle to change its views.

REASONABLE

Given this united opposition, the premier said he hopes the matter can be settled "in a very reasonable fashion."

Although he refused to disclose details, Barrett told reporters that Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall has put forward some specific budget proposals for expansion of joint tourist promotion in the Pacific Northwest.

B.C. now provides funds for joint tourist promotion with several western states.

The two leaders conceded that several of the issues they discussed were primarily federal responsibility, such as control of the salmon fishery.

They said, however, they believe each province or state has a responsibility to lobby their respective senior governments on such problems.

"The biggest thing, in my opinion, gained out of this

U.S. Army to Hit Victoria

A company of American soldiers will join members of the 3rd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, when they leave for winter exercises at Wainwright, Alta., later this month.

About 70-strong, B Company, 1st Battalion, 60th Regional, 172nd Brigade of the U.S. Army, Alaska, will arrive at Work Point Baracks Jan. 29 from Fort Wainwright, Alaska.

That same day the advance party of PPCLI — about 120 officers and men — will leave the Pat Bay Airport, flying in Hercules aircraft from the 435 Squadron at Edmonton.

The Americans will fly out with the main party of troops — about 500 officers and men who will be airlifted in Hercules on Jan. 30 and 31.

Called the Queen's Ransom, the exercise will concentrate on cross-country manoeuvring and survival in the field under winter conditions.

A spokesman said today temperatures of 30 or 40 below could be expected.

The exercise will end Feb. 15. Early in February the PPCLI's B Company will fly to Alaska for similar training with their American counterparts.

Concept of Forced School Attendance Antiquated, Useless, Say Trustees

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

Compulsory school attendance is a fact of law in British Columbia but several Greater Victoria school trustees believe the whole concept of forced attendance is antiquated and useless.

Children should not be told when to attend school, nor should they be forced into a restricted learning timetable.

Education, in other words, should be a right of every child, rather than a legal obligation enforced by the school system.

These board members, along with fellow trustees across the country, say they are being compelled to reconsider the concept of school attendance in the face of declining job prospects for high school graduates and growing need for personal resourcefulness.

The Victoria board is focusing its consideration on the B.C. Public Schools Act and has passed a motion urging the minister of education to "study and proceed to revise" the attendance and department sections of the act.

"The whole act is just a bunch of outdated gobbledygook," board chairman Peter Bunn commented.

"I know Mrs. Dailly would like to chuck out the whole thing and rewrite it as it applies to the 20th century."

Trustee Daphne Temple, who has recommended a number of motions to change sections 121 to 126 of the Public Schools Act, says she favors the idea of "free education."

"If it's compulsory for a child to attend school for a certain number of years, then give the child 12 hits and let him use them as he wishes," she said.

"Then if he wants to take a year or two out of school he can, and perhaps should," Temple said, "and he need not be locked into a certain age structure."

Trustee Walter Donald agrees there should be no age limitations on school attendance and says "there may be sufficient learning opportunities outside of the school system which may be of more value to students than attending school."

Phillip Ney, another trustee, has proposed the board should no longer be responsible for enforcing school attendance but rather should ensure that the right to an education is protected by the Human Rights Act.

'PUNISH PARENT'

"The emphasis should not be on punishing you if you don't attend," Ney said, "but on punishing a parent who prevents a child from attending."

Ney said legal enforcement of school attendance stems from the turn of the century when the act was worded, to prevent parents from forcing their children to work and keeping them from school.

"Children will go to school on their own because they desire to learn and know they need an education," Ney explained.

Board members point out that children are required to attend school only to the age of 15, but most continue through their own choice.

The section on regular department of students should also be revised, says Trustee Donald.

"The school should be structured for the convenience of the majority of students and teaching staff," he said, "and students will be expected to cooperate."

Donald said sections of the act outlining department are open to abuse by school boards which have the legal right to prescribe standards of cleanliness and "appropriate type(s) of clothing to be worn by pupils."

"Why should the board have that power?" Donald asks.

Section 125, on suspension and expulsion of students, is necessary, Donald says, but he objects to the attitude of just getting rid of the errant student rather than having an obligation to rehabilitate and counsel him.

"I don't really think principals are adhering to all those rules in the act," Temple said. "I'm sure they're being more democratic—but they're still on the books."

"Schools should be really open because society's changing so fast, jobs just aren't going to be as available any more and young people need to develop their own resources to survive."

Chairman Bunn said he felt Education Minister Dailly's philosophy on schools "is very close to the philosophies of Donald and Ney" but added that the majority of school boards in B.C. "are incredibly conservative."

He said he expected changes in the Public Schools Act "perhaps along these lines" to come, possibly during the next session of the legislature.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved... actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

School Board Begins '73 On an Optimistic Note

Greater Victoria school board trustees put aside their strike worries for a moment Monday night and opened the first regular board meeting of 1973 on a note of optimism.

In his opening remarks, chairman Peter Bunn hailed "a new climate of understanding" with the government and department of education.

"Those of us who have already met with the minister and her senior officials have been pleased with this change of attitude," Bunn said.

The ever-increasing cost of education should be one of the board's main considerations, Bunn said in outlining areas of concern for 1973. He suggested they endeavor to "exercise the greatest prudence" in spending.

The board must present its final budget to the government by Feb. 15, and Bunn urged board members to work toward the successful presentation to the ratepayers of February's $1.7 million construction referendum.

Co-operation and understanding with district teachers will be a prime consideration of the board in coming months, Bunn said, and three meetings should be set up during the year with the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association.

The chairman also suggested administration and the GVTA should study the Saskatchewan government's Toombs Report on teacher-trustee bargaining.

The report, he said, contained many valuable and pertinent ideas on teachers' contract negotiations, in light of the board's recent pay settlement with district teachers.

Joint planning with Saanich municipality to establish Saanich Community Secondary School must be continued and hopefully brought to fruition in the new year, Bunn said.

Where the Burden Falls

Hampering children's education is a peculiarly unsavory means of enforcing a labor demand, particularly when a major item in the demand is a 20 per cent wage increase in one year. It is not an acceptable argument to say that the disruption of school classes is merely a side effect of normal union picketing of the place of employment. The nature of the effects is the key factor, and the probability that public pressure to resume schooling will result from a lengthy strike cannot be absent from union thinking in this situation. The school board may eventually be asked by parents to reach a settlement at any price. That must surely have crossed the minds of the strikers. The pupils in effect would have to be ransomed.

Even though negotiations have become deadlocked, there was no compulsion for the employees to resort to strike action only a few days after the contract had expired. At the same time, however, both school board and employees should have made sure that renewal negotiations started sufficiently in advance to ensure that an agreement could be reached before the deadline. Then, if either side obviously was stalling, this would have become clear to the public.

It must be evident to the strikers that an increase of 20 per cent within one year would impose a heavy burden on the schools' budget and on the taxpayers who must provide the money. They have been ill-advised by union leaders to make such a concentrated demand. Decreasing the individual workload drastically would result in the need to hire more employees, again raising costs that already are seriously inflated. The accusation that the Canadian Union of Public Employees is using the school maintenance staffs as pacesetters for other similar employees in Greater Victoria could be a valid one, in view of the serious effects which a school strike may have. Other CUPE-organized job-holders may be in a less advantageous position to exert 20 per cent demands.

Two points emerge from the present situation. There should be responsibility on the part of organized labor in setting practicable limits to their annual negotiations, and in avoiding a too precipitate resort to the final club of strike action. And there should be shared responsibility on both sides to ensure that negotiations for school employment and other essential public jobs will be concluded before contracts terminate and leave a gap between signed undertakings. There is a limit to public patience as well as public pocket-books.

JAMES RESTON

'An Obligation to Explain'

WASHINGTON — Even after all the bitter criticism of President Nixon's decision to bomb Hanoi during the Christmas holidays, there is still a fundamental philosophic difference here over both the bombing and the criticism.

The President's sudden cessation of military operations in North Vietnam, and renewed indications of the imminence of a ceasefire, have not changed the essential problem of governance which has been presented by his recent actions.

The Administration has defended its right to bomb the North Vietnamese back to the negotiating table, without consulting the Congress or explaining why the heaviest bombing of the war was used; not for military but for diplomatic purposes.

Just as strongly, Mike Mansfield, the majority leader in the Senate, has challenged this right in public, and though he reported to the President privately the strong resentment in Congress against the unexplained bombing, they did not discuss, let alone resolve, the basic problem of consulting on such questions in the future.

Even Nixon seems confused in his own mind about the obligations of the President and of the Congress and the people at a time of difficult decisions.

Unpopular Stands

For example, in a discussion of his philosophy during the Presidential campaign on Oct. 21 last year, he said: "A leader must be willing to take unpopular stands when they are necessary ... and when he does find it necessary to take an unpopular stand, he has an obligation to explain it to the people, solicit their support, and win their approval."

This, of course, is precisely what the Congress expected on the bombing decision and precisely what the people did not get. And the reason for this may be that, on other occasions, Nixon has taken a quite different position and suggested that the leaders of the country have an obligation to support him when he makes a hard decision.

Just five days before the President accepted the obligation to try to explain his hard decisions, he told the families of the P.O.W.'s that the hardest decision of his Presidency was the May 8 order to bomb Hanoi and mine the North Vietnamese harbors.

"It is often said," he observed on Oct. 16, "that when a President makes a hard necessity to stand by the President of the United States when he makes a terribly difficult, potentially unpopular decision. They are supposed to be some of our top businessmen who also have this kind of background.

"Let me tell you that when that decision was made there was precious little support from any of the so-called opinion leaders of this country who I have just described ..."

This comes nearer to the official attitude now: when the President acts, with or without consultation or explanation, he should be supported, regardless of conflicting judgments or even the dictates of conscience, and those who reject this view of democratic government are, somehow regarded as unworthy.

Heart of Contention

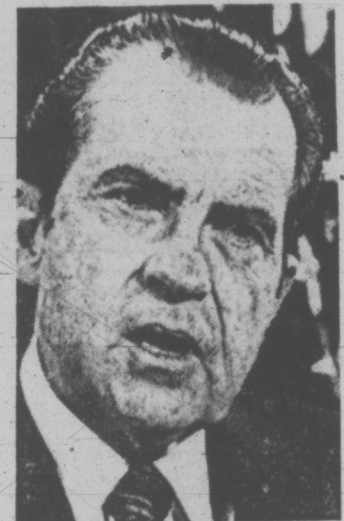

It is this attitude of mind, this assumption that the President may bomb as he pleases, that the Congress and the people should support him or take responsibility for prolonging the war — that is what is at the heart of the contention in Washington today.

And it is serious and even dangerous, for the President now apparently feels that he is the innocent party and that he is being trapped between the enemy and a Congress interfering with the peace negotiations in Paris. And the tragic part of it is that Nixon still feels that he did not provoke the Congress, and evidently sees no contradiction between his practices and his proclaimed principles.

"Above all," he said in his philosophical talk last Oct. 21, "this is the land where an alien paternalism has no place at all — because we deeply believe in a system that derives its power from the consent of the governed."

"All of my life I have had faith in the ultimate wisdom of the people, and in the values of fairness and respect and compassion that spring from within the American spirit. As President, I shall never break that faith."

Not the Same Price for Us

The oil industry bagman or lobbyist in Victoria, G. B. McGillivray, is quoted by Al Forrest, the Business Editor in your paper: "oil prices ... could double in a short time."

Stove oil in 1964 sold for 17.8¢ a gallon and is now 24¢, a rise of almost 20 per cent and it is just announced that the price is going up a further 2¢. The reason is "demand," but they neglect to say from where and why. Shipments to the U.S., this month, are expected to reach 1,690,700 barrels a day (b/d), an increase of 300,000 b/d over one year ago. That insatiable oil-hungry giant needs oil in ever increasing amounts to service its motor-driven society and will pay good prices to get it.

My understanding is that before Canada permits oil export we must have 30 years of proven reserves for home needs. If this is so, my reasoning suggests that since proven reserves are largely paid for (costs written off) only small nominal oil increases should be expected for many years to cover increasing refining and transport costs. If foreign countries are so hungry for oil, sell it to them for the inflated market prices, but surely not to Canadians for the same price! I am naive enough to think it is still Canadian oil but perhaps I am wrong.

Since Leduc flowed oil in 1948 some $15 billion has been spent by that industry, and they have reaped about $13 billion back. Estimates suggest that for $2 billion the oil industry owns about $40 billion worth of oil, gas and sulphur in the ground, i.e. they can sell 2 billion dollars worth and the rest is paid for!

In spite of large reserves, the industry is hell-bent to develop (muck up) the Arctic and our north to bring our oil south to the great southern neighbor, at little benefit to us. Recently Imperial Oil optioned off five-sixths of the future gas of a potential gas production site on Arctic reserves to two U.S. companies for a $40 million loan, leaving 10 per cent for Canada. My reasoning says Imperial didn't need the money, and that we can sell such fuel for a lot more in 40 or 50 years or better still, keep it for Canadian use and leave some for our grandchildren.

Why would Imperial Oil do this? I believe that Standard Oil of New Jersey acquired control of Imperial Oil for about $15 million and since that time have earned some $500 million in dividends and still own some 70 per cent of the stock valued at many millions. Imperial earned a profit of about $76 million last year and probably sent about $25 million to the U.S. as dividends. This great "Canadian" company is foreign-owned and controlled. We are reported to own perhaps 25 per cent of oil stocks but control none of it with majority holdings.

My view suggests:

1. That our oil industry is almost entirely foreign-controlled and too often services those interests before our own.
2. That such control was not sold but was literally "given away" and the give-away still goes on.
3. That there is little justification for any major price increase in oil products over the next 20 years, for Canadian consumers.
4. That we should suspend oil exploration in the Arctic for at least 20 to 30 years.

5. That we should curtail and soon halt oil and gas exports.
6. That all exported oil and gas should bring premium prices.

I would like to challenge Al Forrest and Mr. McGillivray to tell us more about the oil industry in Canada — much more — to show us what fools we have been and what idiots we shall be if we continued as we do. — R. A. Sutherland, M.D., 3040 Shelbourne St.

60 YEARS AGO

From The Times of Jan. 16, 1913:

The first session of the thirteenth parliament of B.C. was formally inaugurated today by His Honor, Lieut. Governor Patterson, who was attended by his private secretary H. J. S. Muskett and his aide de camp, B. H. Tyrwhitt Drake, as well as a staff composed of naval and military men. There was a brilliant gathering in the House long before the hour of three. The Speech from the Throne, announced a bill furthering arrangements for completion of the Canadian Northern Pacific Railway system, amendments to the Land Act, additions to the Court of Appeal, changes in the Taxation Act, and other measures.

HAROLD GREER

Ontario's Lesson for B.C.

TORONTO — Little notice was paid when the Ontario government established, in July of 1971, an Advisory Committee on Energy headed by John Deutsch, the principal of Queen's University, and asked it to determine the province's energy needs to 1990 and how those needs may be met. After all, in supposedly power-rich Ontario, reports of an energy crisis in the United States and issues of pipelines from the Arctic have a certain remoteness about them.

The Deutsch committee's report is soon to be released, however, and all the indications are that the province is in for a rude shock. Ontario will likely be told that the U.S. energy crisis is continental, that this province cannot escape it and that new policies will have to be devised to deal with it.

The tipoff to the Committee's findings is contained in a speech which Committee member R. H. Hay, a retired Kingston physicist, has been repeating to meetings of municipal power commissions across the province in the last few months. Dr. Hay's mission is obviously to pave the way for the Committee's report, because his basic message has been that we simply must start using less power.

Fully Exploited

Ontario, Dr. Hay has been saying, has no indigenous source of energy except hydro-electricity and this has now been fully exploited. Eighty-three per cent of the province's energy requirements have to be imported in the form of fossil fuels and the price of these will rise substantially as the supply dwindles. Canadian gas reserves, excluding the Mackenzie delta and the Arctic Islands, are good for only 20 years at today's rate of use. Canadian crude oil will last to perhaps the year 2000 only if the Athabasca Tar Sands are developed. The world picture is "no better."

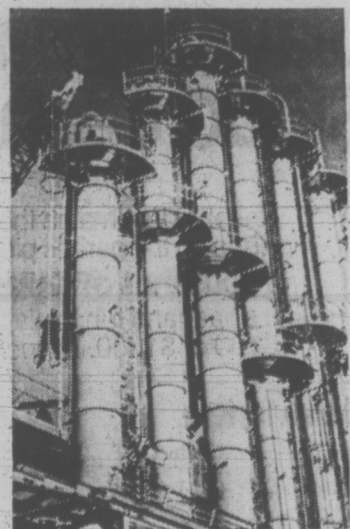

Dr. Hay predicts Ontario may feel the pinch as early as 1975. "We are the most vulnerable to the energy crisis that has hit the U.S.," he says. "Unless we move with wisdom as well as swiftness and boldness the black-outs, the brown-outs and the shortages will be upon us too."

Therefore the present rate of growth in Ontario's consumption of energy — 4.6 per cent annually and climbing — must "sometime, somehow and sooner rather than later" be slowed down and eventually be reduced to less than three per cent a year. But this will involve a transfer from fossil fuels to electricity, and how is it to be produced with all the hydraulic sources already developed?

Dr. Hay's answer, of course, is electricity from nuclear power — "the only bright star on our horizon." Now that the Pickering nuclear power generating station east of Toronto has proved that the "bugs" which cursed its forerunner at Douglas Point on Lake Huron can be eliminated, Ontario's energy salvation lies in successful exploitation of the natural-uranium, heavy-water reactor for generating electricity.

The Pickering project is indeed a remarkable development, in economic as well as engineering terms. Recent figures from Ontario Hydro reveal that despite the high capital costs of nuclear generation — about twice that of a conventional thermal station — electricity can be produced for 6.37 mills per kilowatt hour, against 7.08 mills for a thermal station using a high-sulphur fossil fuel and 7.93 mills for one using a more expensive low-sulphur fuel.

In addition, Ontario contains about 80 per cent of Canada's known uranium deposits and there are assured reserves for all Hydro's needs at around $10 per pound of U-308. This means nuclear generation, once installed, is relatively inflation-proof, whereas the cost of fossil fuels is certain to rise sharply.

All this, however, is somewhat deceptive, as Dr. Hay would be the first to admit. Ontario Hydro needs eight to 10 years lead time in planning and building new generating stations, and the "mix" of power which is now coming on stream had to be decided back in the mid-Sixties when the future of nuclear power was much less certain.

Indeed, considering the difficulties that the Douglas Point prototype encountered and the uncertainty of a supply of heavy water to make further nuclear generation possible, Hydro is to be applauded for deciding to go ahead not only with a 2,160,000-kilowatt station at Pickering but an even larger 3,200,000-kw project at Bruce, near Douglas Point, now scheduled for service between 1975 and 1978.

But Hydro, hedging its bets, is also building Nanticoke, a coal-fired, 4,000,000-kw generating station on Lake Erie, and Lennox, a 2,295,000-kw station burning fuel oil on Lake Ontario near Kingston. These stations will be totally on stream by 1977. Thus, of the 10 million kilowatts of new generating capacity to be added in this decade, less than half — 4.3 million kilowatts — will be nuclear.

The question immediately arises whether this will be good enough to get Ontario through the decade without the brown-outs, shortages and spiralling power prices feared by Dr. Hay. The longer-term question is whether Hydro should not turn entirely to nuclear generation when building future plants.

Nuclear Power Jump

In 1970, 60.5 per cent of the electrical energy produced by Hydro came from hydraulic stations, 37.8 per cent from fossil-fired plants and 1.7 per cent from nuclear stations. By 1990, according to a recent speech by general manager D. J. Gordon, Hydro will be producing 14 per cent of its power from hydraulic, 28 per cent from fossil fuels and 58 per cent from nuclear fission.

That sounds like an appropriate shift to nuclear generation until it is realized that Ontario's demands for electricity are doubling every 10 years and that in 1990 Hydro expects to have a demand for 55 million kilowatts. If 28 per cent of this is produced from fossil fuels, 15 million kilowatts will be produced from this source. This is more than Hydro's capacity from all sources in 1970 and clearly implies that the Commission, despite an increasing emphasis on nuclear generation, still intends to build an appreciable number of fossil-fuel plants.

The problem of the right mix is difficult because nuclear generation is base-load power and of little use for meeting "peak" demands; some fossil-fueled thermal stations, which fill this role admirably, are therefore necessary. Ecologically as well, too many nuclear stations may not be tolerable; they have to be built on large bodies of water and they heat up the nearby water something fierce.

No doubt, however, the Advisory Committee on Energy has gone into all these aspects and will have all the answers.

Lots of Political Pabulum But Not Enough Religion

THE ECONOMIST

There might have been a bit of a stir if the Pope and the Archbishop of Canterbury had swapped their Christmas messages: if His Holiness had condemned all men of violence (including those who claim to be fighting for a united Catholic Ireland) and if His Grace had ticked off President Richard Nixon for sending his B-52 bombers over North Vietnam.

But most people would probably have not noticed at all. They have ceased to take any notice of the torrents of churchy comments on current affairs that gush from the religious centres of the Western world.

The authors of these pronouncements apparently feel obliged to go on making them, whether or not many people are listening. To be fair, the main reason is not their weakness for verbosity. The churches are responding to pressures from within, their own ranks. Impatient activists are urging their religious leaders to engage in direct confrontations with dictatorial regimes, especially those which pursue policies of racial discrimination.

One of those activists, Father Cosmas Desmond, resigned a few weeks ago from the priesthood and the Franciscan order because, he said, the Roman Catholic Church in South Africa had accepted apartheid "in practice, if not in theory." He apparently feels that his bishops are too concerned with saving souls, instead of working for the changing of the political and social conditions in South Africa.

Quite a few Christian laymen and priests in various parts of Africa, Asia and Latin America seem to agree with Father Desmond in wanting more liberation and less salvation.

Their leaders are increasingly following them. The World Council of Churches in Geneva often seems to put a higher value on political and social commitment than on the more traditional religious activities. The Vatican has become deeply preoccupied with the political and social issues of the day. So have most sorts of archbishops and leading preachers from many non-Episcopal churches.

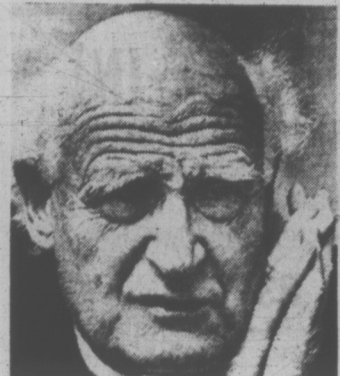

This trend toward the "politicization" of the Western churches is welcome to radical revolutionaries. However reluctant they may be to admit it, they need "respectable" allies in the early stages of their struggle to change the social and political order in their countries. Communist governments, too, often find the churches useful unwitting allies. And many people in the Third World look to the churches to act as advocates of their economic interests.

Those who complain that the churches are now tending to earmark for some strange causes many things that are God's, and seeking unsuccessfully to render to some poor men things that are Mammon's, need to make their grounds of criticism clear. Certainly, it has always been a proper function of Christianity to make people aware of the needs of the poor. Happily it has always been its pride to attempt to bring principle into the daily practice of politics. Churchmen have done that, often with dire results for themselves, ever since the beginnings of Christianity.

The Illiteracy Treadmill

By CAMERON DUODU
London Observer

ACCRA — African children still learn about the world from schoolbooks that talk about snow and skyscrapers, saints and crusaders, and the "explorers" who brought white masters to their countries from faraway lands.

This is mainly because newly-independent states in Africa lack adequate printing and publishing facilities, and so they must spend precious foreign exchange importing books written by foreigners.

This situation has caused enough concern to attract educationists, writers and publishers from Cameroun, Gambia, Ghana, Nigeria, Liberia and Sierra Leone to a conference in Monrovia to pool ideas. The meeting last fall was sponsored by West African Governments and UNESCO.

Delegates swapped dismal stories of the vicious circle in which their countries are trapped. Because they are unable to produce a sufficient number of sufficiently expert and resourceful native publishers there is no incentive for indigenous would-be authors to write books that can alter the outlook of their people — children and adults — so that they can take off from a primitive to an advanced social and economic system.

All the delegates criticized their own governments for perpetuating this kind of poverty. While these governments were active enough in building roads, hospitals and schools they seemed to think that if there is a problem about books it will solve itself in the long run. The Gambian delegate quoted only one instance to show how vain a hope that is.

He said: "Almost all the books used in our schools have been written abroad and imported into Gambia. With the recent currency change-over in Britain to new pence, and by the Gambian government to dalasi and butus there is a serious need either to rewrite mathematics text books produced by Britain, or to write completely new text books using Gambia's new money units."

Ghana has already faced that problem. Its mathematics books now deal with cedis and pesewas. Nigeria is soon to get books that deal with pounds and kobs. In Guinea, the franc is to become the silly, but in Sierra Leone, the leone seems to have an uncertain future as the country seeks a new name for itself.

But these disparities are but a minor aspect of the overall linguistic problem. The Gambian delegate said that although eight out of ten of his country's people are Muslim they learn verses from the Koran by rote because they cannot speak Arabic; it is not taught in the schools.

The Ghana delegate pointed out that the "illiteracy rate of Africa is estimated by UNESCO to be 80 per cent." Since literacy in English or French is even more difficult for Africans to acquire than literacy in their native languages of which there are thousands in what languages should books for the continent's new sovereignties be written?

And having decided on language — and almost all the delegates agreed that international languages should be used in addition to fostering interest in and developing African languages — what sort of new books should be written first?

The Sierra Leone delegate deplored the scarcity of books for what he called "middle-level manpower training" as well as books for "functional literacy." He said he appreciated the need for books for pure enjoyment to ensure that once people had learned to read they would go on reading, but also an effort should be made to help those people who were less interested in mere enjoyment than in books of practical value — books that would teach how to grow better crops, how to market produce more profitably, how to raise standards of health and hygiene to promote greater general efficiency and thus greater happiness.

The Nigerian delegate wanted books "capable of informing both children and adults and of continually expanding their horizons of knowledge and ideas beyond their immediate surroundings." He wanted publishers to offer writers courses at which they could learn how to prepare manuscripts and speed up any work they already had in hand. At present there was a communications gap between writers and publishers.

It seemed there was also a considerable communications gap between the countries represented at the conference. For example, the Ghanaians learned to their surprise that while their own government had roped other African countries into a project to produce an "Encyclopedia Africana" written by African scholars, Cameroun was busy with a similar work using African, Arab and French scholars. The Cameroun did not know about the Ghanaian project either, though it has been gestating for about 10 years.

Out of all the worried talk came recommendations that each country's education ministry should act specifically on language policies so that writers could be free to make a choice of language in which to write. West African governments are being asked to give books and publishing a high priority.

'NEWS' AS POLITICAL PROPAGANDA

THE GLOBE AND MAIL

The federal government is hard at it again with the discredited techniques of news management. In the prime minister's office and in other ministries, the faceless officials were offering "briefings" on the speech from the Throne, with the condition that there should be no attribution of what was said to a specific source.

Thus the press was offered gloss to go on the government's statement of its intentions. Speculative hopes and fanciful exaggerations of the possible effects of policy were presented in the guise of authoritative knowledge. They have their effect on the public mind; and the government cannot be caught with the responsibility; challenged on any point of misleading interpretation, it will shrug it off as "press speculation."

In the case of the prime minister's office, the anonymous oracle was in fact Martin O'Connell, the new principal secretary who has replaced Marc Lalonde, now a member of Parliament and minister of health and welfare. Mr. O'Connell is a defeated candidate in the October 30 general election and a Liberal Party member for whom a job was found on the prime minister's staff.

Those reporters who accepted the condition of anonymity of his "briefing" were running the risks of being used in the game of political propaganda. Their readers have a right to know that the expert source — or filter — in this instance was an old pro politician.

When Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, or any of his ministers, want to explain their policies, let them do so openly. There has been enough of conning by clerks.

New York Times

NEW YORK — If there was any doubt that President Nixon would take his landslide victory as a license for a major assault on the First Amendment, it has been removed by the clever proposals put forward by Clay Whitehead for the gutting of broadcast journalism.

Whitehead, the President's principal aide on what the White House calls "telecommunications," has proposed legislation which offers a substantial economic bonus to television station owners. It would require them to seek renewal of their federal licenses every five years, instead of three, and it would permit the Federal Communications Commission to listen to competing applicants for a television channel only after the FCC already had taken the channel away from a former licensee. Both provisions would substantially relieve broadcast licensees of the burden of showing that they were providing better service than some challenger might.

With that peculiarly smooth brand of deception that seems to characterize so much of what Richard Nixon touches, a spokesman for Whitehead explained blandly that in return for this "relaxed approach" individual broadcasters would have to accept "more responsibility" for the network programs they run. Whitehead did not trouble himself with such subtlety, in his speech to the Sigma Delta Chi journalism fraternity in Indianapolis. "Station managers and network officials who fail to act to correct imbalance or consistent bias in the networks," he said, "can only be considered willing participants, to be held fully accountable, at license renewal time. Who else but management can or should correct so-called professionals who confuse sensationalism with sense and who dispense elitist gossip in the guise of news analysis?"

Translated from the baloney, this means that when stations apply for renewal of their federal licenses, the new Nixon bill would require that they demonstrate that they had "balanced" their news broadcasts to the satisfaction of the Administration's appointees on the FCC.

Even accepting for the purpose of argument — and it is intellectually painful to do so — the ludicrous proposition that the networks do dispense "elitist gossip" instead of news, and "sensationalism" rather than "sense," would it follow that the remedy for such villainy should be government regulation of the content of news broadcasts? Of course not; that would be to set a goat to guard the cabbage patch; nevertheless, no mistake should be made but that is precisely what this autocratic Administration now is proposing.

It is on a clever proposal, moreover, on at least three counts. The first is that station owners who themselves have little concern for the First Amendment, or news, or public affairs, are offered the carrot along with the stick; as long as they do not care about being censored, their economic security and freedom from competition will be enhanced.

The second is that the Whitehead proposal probably is more feasible politically and less blatant ideologically than the alternative — which some network lawyers and officials have been fearing, in the wake of the landslide — of an antitrust attack on network news operations. Such an attack, it should be borne in mind, is already under way on network entertainment broadcasts.

Finally, this is a clever proposal because even if Congress sees it for what it is and rejects it, the networks and the station owners would be less than sensible if they did not also recognize it as one more manifestation of this Administration's determination to reduce or control the power of television journalism, which may well be, as the maverick FCC commissioner, Nick Johnson, put it, "the only national institution remotely capable of serving as a check on abuses of Presidential power."

As what Johnson called "Nixon's war on the networks" continues, they and their station affiliates would be remarkable indeed if they did not to some extent retreat, retrench and take heed of their peril. And that's what Nixon would like to accomplish, anyway.

It is true, of course, and it is implicit in Johnson's estimate of them, that the network news services have immense power; since power is always likely to be abused, the networks have been occasional sinners — although many of us may think their sins have been more often of omission than commission. But no local station can cover the war in Vietnam, or the presidential election, or the Apollo flight, or riots in a dozen cities, or once, or any of the myriad national and international stories that the networks can, do and should cover.

It was Whitehead who substituted gossip and sensationalism for clear evidence, of which there is none, that the networks have intolerably abused their power. And the American people will be the losers if the management of the local stations that run network news are to be made so nervous that they harass the networks to be less controversial, stop running network news, or protect their licenses with government-approved counter-programming.

For under $100 we know of no other portable calculator that will give you office machine accuracy and convenience away from the office. The DIGI-MATIC 8 is the kind of personal-size calculator you've been waiting for. Fast, accurate, durable, attractive, the DIGI-MATIC 8 adds, subtracts, multiplies, divides and does mixed calculations anytime, anywhere. Instantly. Without any excuses. Here's why:

Floating decimal

Some portable calculators have a fixed decimal. This leads to small errors when you multiply or divide using a few decimal places, gross errors when working with many decimal places. The DIGI-MATIC 8 has a floating decimal. Which means it doesn't round figures off to one or two decimals. The decimal point goes where it has to go to give you the correct answer.

Constant key

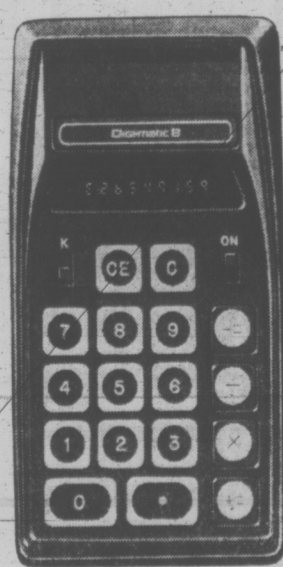

Special constant key permits continuous multiplication or division.

CE key

Say you're working to a final total through a long set of calculations. And you make a mistake on the last entry. The CE key allows you to clear the wrong entry and put in the correct one. There's no need to start all over from the beginning.

Portable power counts

Many portable calculators offer you only minutes of portable calculating time. The DIGI-MATIC 8 offers you up to 3 hours. You see, some other calculators use small throw-away batteries. Like some toys. But the DIGI-MATIC 8 is powered by rechargeable ni-cad batteries (recharger included). You simply plug it in and while you're using it, the DIGI-MATIC 8 is recharging itself.

The incomparable DIGI-MATIC 8 is sold only by Sears

Rezoning Verdict To Wait

Saanich aldermen Monday night agreed to wait for a sewage disposal report before acting on an application to rezone 1½ acres of land at Royal Oak for a new high-ways department office building.

About 75 persons attended a public hearing on the bid to have a triangular parcel at Pipeline and Royal Oak intersection zoned from rural-residential to civic institutional, which was opposed by 75-signature petition.

The move was initiated by the provincial department of highways, whose regional offices at Burnside and Tillicum are no longer adequate.

About 20 persons would be employed in the proposed new office building at Royal Oak, whose site is owned by the highways department.

Four residents spoke against the application, mainly on grounds that the residential character of the neighborhood should not be changed. One resident and two senior civil servants spoke in favor of the bid.

Assistant deputy minister of highways R. G. Harvey said the proposed 6,000 square foot building would blend with the residential surroundings and would not increase traffic appreciably.

Public works architect W. G. Argyle, the designer, said the single-story, low profile structure was about twice the size of a large house and landscaping would improve it.

Petitioners said development along major crossroads must be strictly controlled as far as ingress and egress is concerned, and cited a drainage problem in the area.

Saanich officials said installing a drainage system for the site would present no difficulties, but one spokesman said he could not predict whether the medical health officer would approve an engineered effluent filter system.

Residential development in that neighborhood had been halted pending the developing of sanitary sewer lines.

No More Development Planned

Harvey assured the hearing that no additional development, such as an equipment storage yard, would take place at the site.

The highways department would be responsible for installing a water service at a cost of about $5,000.

Council tabled the application, ending further discussion until the health officer's report is available, but Mayor Hugh Curtis noted that it was "refreshing" to have a full-scale description, drawings and a model as well as the appearance of two senior officers to deal with a provincial government proposal.

"Usually we are notified by an order-in-council that such and such is about to happen," he said.

Council approved a second application, requiring rezoning from general industrial to general commercial an occupied site at Douglas and Cuddehul.

The Royal Trust office building was erected there last year at a time when it was considered the industrial zoning permitted office use, which has since taken place.

Saanich refused to permit the lower floor, with access by way of Cuddehul, to be occupied until the zoning was straightened out.

Esquimalt Eyes Roads Program

Widening of Esquimalt and Craigflower and greater use of secondary roads like Old Esquimalt, Lyall and Colville were proposed in an Esquimalt traffic study released Monday.

The study, produced by municipal engineer Cliff Warren and presented to the municipal traffic subcommittee, forecasts an increase in traffic flow through Esquimalt to the Colwood area.

Admirals should also be widened, the study said, and Lyall, Old Esquimalt and Colville upgraded to spur greater use.

The study also recommends that stop signs on Lyall and Lamson and Fraser be eventually replaced by traffic lights.

Ald. Art Mebs told the subcommittee that residents of Old Esquimalt would give council "a hell of a lot of static" if traffic is increased. Local residents would also resist lights on Lyall, he said.

The study suggests Esquimalt seek provincial government assistance in improving roads and making new ones for through traffic.

Veterans Pension Increase Planned

OTTAWA (CP) — Veterans Affairs Minister Daniel Macdonald said Monday he will seek to have veterans' pensions raised by at least the same amount as the old age pensions.

He said outside the House he supports a recommendation of a study group that the veterans pension go up about 20 per cent.

But at any rate they should go up by the "substantial" amount promised by the federal government for the old age pension, he said.

The minister already has said that a report of a study group made up of public servants and representatives of veterans' groups will go before a Commons committee as soon as it is established.

Man Dead In Room At Hotel

A 56-year-old Victoria man was found dead in his locked hotel suite Monday morning, city police reported today.

Cecil Charles Holmes, a guest at the Ritz Hotel, 710 Fort, was found lying face-down in his suite, dressed in pajamas and housecoat. A bottle of wine and a vial of tranquilizers were found close to the body.

Police were called to the hotel by a desk clerk who said he hadn't seen Holmes in four days.

Coroner Edmond St. Jorre said no inquest will be held.

VGH Post Attracts 26 Bids

Applications are rolling in from as far away as Quebec for two senior posts in hospital administration to be filled in Greater Victoria.

At Victoria General Hospital, 26 applications have been received for the position of executive director and eight of these are being examined in detail, a spokesman said today.

The post, with a salary in the range of $25,000, has been open since the resignation of Dr. E. G. Q. Van Tilburg in July.

Directors of the Capital regional hospital board voted last month to hire a director of hospital planning and executive director Dennis Young said today close to 20 applications have been received.

That job will pay in the $22,000 range.

Applications for the hospital post have come from as far as Toronto and one has come from Montreal for the regional position.

Victoria General is also looking for a medical director and a director of nursing but is giving priority to the search for an executive director. There have been five applications for medical director and about a dozen for director of nursing.

The hospital's personnel committee may be ready to make a recommendation for executive director at the hospital board meeting in nine days.

A decision on the regional director of hospital planning won't come before next month at the earliest. The regional board holds its inaugural meeting Wednesday.

California Auto Ban Bid 'Silly'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "I don't think you are going to be able to stop people from driving automobiles in this city," said Mayor Sam Yorty.

"Silly and asinine," fumed a television newscaster on the air.

"Impossible. You can declare martial law or something like that, but can you imagine? It would be worse than prohibition," said the chairman of the state air resources board, A. J. Haagen-Smit.

Southern California, which more than any other region of the United States has built a lifestyle on the private auto and the freeway, got the word from the federal government Monday.

The government intends — at least on paper — to clean up smog by forcing residents of a six-county area around Los Angeles to give up most driving. The weapon: gasoline rationing from May to October — the peak smog season — intended to force auto usage down as low as 18 per cent of the present level.

The reaction, in one way or another, could be summed up as: "They can't do that to us."

They probably won't. Most officials said they doubted the rationing plan would ever become law.

It was announced here by William D. Ruckelshaus, head of the environmental protection agency, who was legally required to come up with some plan that will clean up the air in the Los Angeles basin to meet the standards set by the federal Clean Air Act of 1970.

Ruckelshaus said such a drastic cutback in vehicle use was the only way the standards could be met by the specified deadline — 1977 — but even he indicated the ration plan was a manoeuvre, not a firm purpose of the government.

There was speculation that the drastic plan was a move to provoke public reaction, bringing pressure on Congress to extend the deadline for meeting clean air standards.

Ruckelshaus told newsmen he thought such an extension "makes sense." The preamble to the proposal noted that there are "serious reservations as to the feasibility and desirability of the course of action proposed here."

Rural Indians to Be Aided

A special federal-provincial committee has been established to allow greater Indian participation in provincial agricultural projects.

Establishment of the committee was announced by B.C. Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich in a joint press release with federal Regional Economic Expansion Minister Don Jamieson. The special committee, on which Indian representatives will also serve, was established under the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act adopted by the two levels of government last August.

The agreement "provides for the financing of various types of projects designed to help develop or improve employment opportunities for people of Indian ancestry in rural areas of the province," the press release said. These could include commercial businesses or income-boosting projects for Indians employed in agriculture, forestry or fishing.

It is also intended to provide more employment opportunities for Indians now living

Esquimalt Eyes Grant

Esquimalt public works subcommittee will ask council to seek $115,000 for three capital projects from the recently announced federal capital works program.

The projects are a new police and fire building ($150,000), a paint shop ($30,000) and a storm drain and sanitary sewer program ($255,000).

Applications for part of the $37 million made available for the capital works program should be made as soon as possible, municipal engineer Cliff Warren told the subcommittee on Monday.

The program provides low-cost loans on approved projects, with a forgiveness of 50 per cent of the on site labor costs, and a forgiveness of 100 per cent of labor costs between Dec. 1 and May 31. Object is to increase employment, especially in winter months.

As only 20 per cent of the cost of the sewer and drain program would be labor costs, it would take lower priority than the buildings, which would be 50 per cent labor costs, said treasurer Peter Cairns.

Murder Up During Ban On Hanging: Report

OTTAWA (CP) — Statistics showing that murders increased during the now-expired partial ban on capital punishment were released Monday, just days before another capital-punishment debate in Parliament.

MPs this month will start to determine whether the figures are significant when they decide whether to approve a government proposal for another five-year extension of the ban.

A report prepared for the solicitor-general's department and released before Christmas said they were not, in terms of whether there should be a return to general hanging.

Prime Minister Trudeau made it clear Monday that the government considers its proposal for continuation of the same ban for another five years a matter of priority.

A report by Montreal criminologist Dr. Ezzat Abdel, commissioned for the solicitor-general, said the increase in homicide cannot be attributed to the ban.

Meanwhile, in Ottawa, a spokesman for Solicitor-General Warren Allmand said today the minister is open to any new ideas on the capital punishment issue.

But this does not mean that Allmand necessarily will support them, he said.

The spokesman was commenting on reports that Allmand "appeared receptive" to a proposal to abolish capital punishment for murder and to impose instead a mandatory 25-year sentence.

Two Liberal backbenchers, Jim Fleming of Toronto York West and Marcel Prud'homme of Montreal St. Denis, said last week they would propose such an amendment when the Commons debates a bill extending for another five years the restriction of hanging to murderers of policemen and prisoners on guard.

NEEDLESS SURGERY CLAIMED

MEDFORD, Mass. (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.) said Monday some U.S. surgeons are "performing unnecessary operations on poor children" covered by Medicaid.

"In other words, because the government will pay the bill, surgeons are performing unnecessary operations on poor children and yet you know that not even the simplest operation is without risk to the patient's life," he said.

In an address Kennedy said preliminary findings of an investigation by his senate subcommittee on health shows that doctors in California are performing "four times as many tonsillectomies on children on Medicaid as on the rest of the population."

Kennedy said the United States has twice as many surgeons as Britain and twice as much surgery per person.

"We clearly have too many surgeons with too little to do," he said.

Montreal Report On Olympics Due

Times News Services
Montreal organizers of the 1976 Olympic Games are due to report in detail to Olympic headquarters at Lausanne, Switzerland, on what they have done in preparation for the Summer Games.

Willi Daume of Germany, vice-president of the International Olympic Committee, is quoted by a Canadian Broadcasting Corporation correspondent in Bonn as believing Montreal will have little to report.

On Monday Daume warned Montreal against holding a referendum on whether to hold the 1976 Summer Games.

"The situation is a little dangerous if Montreal decides to hold a referendum like Denver did over the Winter Games. I hope they don't do it. (The Denver referendum rejected the games)."

"Personally, I think it is a bad thing for Montreal to make such a decision three years after agreeing to stage the Games."

Correspondent Alfred Schroeder said that leading

IOC members now admit that choosing Montreal was a mistake and consideration is being given to the question of what city might replace it should Montreal decide to quit.

Schroeder said IOC members believe Moscow — which bid strongly for the 1976 games — is not ready yet, while another contender, Los Angeles, is given little chance. There was mention of excellent new facilities in Singapore and Amsterdam was given "some chance."

Meir Bolsters Africa Ties

GENEVA (AP) — Prime Minister Golda Meir of Israel arrived in Switzerland today for a conference here with President Felix Houphouët-Boigny of the Ivory Coast in an effort to bolster Israeli ties with Africa.

She flew from Rome where she had an hour's talk Monday with Pope Paul.

Before leaving Rome she visited a synagogue on the edge of an old ghetto where Popes in the last century forced Jews to live.

Rome's chief rabbi, Elio Toaff, accompanied Mrs.

Meir to the synagogue, built in 1874.

Later, she met Rome's Jewish community at a reception. One of the guests said she spoke about the Arab-Israeli conflict.

The purpose of the meeting with the Ivory Coast leader, who is visiting Geneva, is to bolster Israel's sagging position in Africa, where three previously friendly governments broke diplomatic relations with Israel recently.

The trip to Switzerland is the second event of Mrs. Meir's European visit that was not previously announced.

Bid Depository System Praised

Times News Services
VANCOUVER — A bid depository system benefits the purchaser of a contractor's services as well as the contractors and sub-contractors, a public hearing into alleged irregularities in the bidding on an extension to the Campbell River Hospital was told Monday.

Quantity surveyor John Downward said that under such a system, currently in use in the Campbell River area, subcontractors distribute their bids to general contractors and also place a sealed bid for their work on any project with the bid depository which is run by local construction associations.

Downward said the general contractor receives the bids before his tender on the project is due. He said general contractors are not permitted to get sub-contractors to undercut their competitors' prices under the current system.

He said under the old system, there was a risk that subcontractors would place extremely low bids in order to get a job and then wouldn't be able to complete the work or would do substandard work.

WHY ARE THE SCHOOLS CLOSED?

This is why:

Our first job on the Greater Victoria School Board is to educate children. We also have a responsibility to the general public which pays for the education system. And we must treat our employees fairly. We are trying to do all three jobs, as always, but this week some of our schools are closed by strike action of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 382.

Here are the main issues:

WAGES

The Union demands a wage increase of 20 per cent on a one-year contract. This would give a janitor a raise of $125 per month, to $752 per month this year.

The Board has offered a two-year contract with a wage increase of 9.2 per cent in 1973. This would give a janitor $684 per month this year, and $742 per month in 1974.

WORK

A janitor may now be required to clean an area rated at 28,400 square feet per shift. The Union wishes to restrict this to 16,000 square feet per shift.

The Board proposes no change.

The Greater Victoria School Board greatly regrets the inconvenience which this strike has caused children and parents. The closure of some of our schools was initiated by the Union's strike action, not by the School Board.

We believe we have offered a reasonable and just settlement to our employees, one which we are prepared to justify to the taxpayer. The Board has taken a united stand on this issue because it believes it has no other choice.

We remain willing to talk with our striking union, but we are unwilling to make a spendthrift settlement for the sake of expedience.

CMHC Shuffle Set To Meet New Policy

By BOB DOUGLAS

OTTAWA (CP) — Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., under fire from several quarters recently, faces major surgery to suit changing government housing policy.

The planned reorganization is part of increasing government concern with social housing policy—providing more and better homes for low-income families, the elderly and such groups as Indians and Metis.

Herbert Hignett, CMHC president, said in an interview Monday he hopes the reorganization will begin in three or four months, before he leaves the corporation in July.

It will involve extended authority for regional and local offices, retraining personnel to fit the new approach and closer links between federal and provincial housing policy groups, Mr. Hignett said.

He said the government is seeking someone to replace himself and a candidate for the vacant post of vice-president for policy development.

Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford has indicated that his search for a new president is not restricted to CMHC employees.

Mr. Basford outlined his views of the changing CMHC role in a Commons speech last week. He said:

"It (CMHC) ... cannot any

longer be simply a banking institution or a lending institution for the building industry."

CMHC no longer, could treat housing as a method of stimulating the economy, using housing funds to spur a flagging economy while curbing the flow of housing money to dampen economic activity.

The new government view is that "adequate homes in a good environment are a social right to Canadians, Mr. Basford said.

There has been an upsurge in funds spent on low-income housing in the last four years. A spokesman for Mr. Basford said last week that federal funds spent in this sector during that period exceeds what was spent in the previous 23 years.

COULDN'T ADAPT

Michael Dennis, a Toronto consultant hired by the government, said in a report released last summer by New Democrat Leader David Lewis that CMHC has not been able to adapt to this new approach.

The corporation had become accustomed to being a lender of money to builders of homes, mostly for middle-income families. It was reacting to housing requests rather than spurring social housing development.

He was critical of the way decisions are made in CMHC, and said too much reliance was placed on the minister responsible for housing to make decisions on applications for grants and loans for housing projects.

Mr. Hignett said the new plan would be to give this authority to senior CMHC employees in regional or local offices. They would work closely with the provinces on projects involving federal-provincial co-operation.

The police development group in CMHC also would have to work in co-operation with the provinces and municipalities to meet local needs.

'STAND FOR PEACE'

OTTAWA (CP) — A newly-elected MP proposed in the Commons Monday that Canada take a stand for world peace by renouncing militarism and placing the Canadian Forces under the sole direction of the United Nations.

Ian Arrol (PC—York East), saying the use of armed force must be a world responsibility, called on the federal government to abolish the defence department and replace it with a "department for United Nations co-operation."

"I declare for peace and would have my nation so declare."

"I ask that Canada immediately give up its right to use armed forces in aid of, or against, any other country whatsoever, unless at the direction of the United Nations."

Death Penalty, Language Called Grit Smokescreen

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Burnaby-Richmond-Delta MP John Reynolds accused Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau Monday of using forthcoming debates on capital punishment and the two official languages as a smokescreen to hide his lack of economic policies.

The Conservative MP, making his maiden speech in the House of Commons, noted that Trudeau earlier in the day had stated that the capital punishment question is not of "lesser importance" to his government than measures to deal with inflation and unemployment. He was refusing to set aside debate on the abolition of capital punishment so that the economic problems could be tackled as first priority this session.

"I suppose as a further smokescreen he will bring in the official language question next," Reynolds stated. "I suggest the government is stalling because it has no program to deal with the pressing economic problems facing Canada today."

He also accused B.C.'s two cabinet ministers, Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford and Environment Minister Jack Davis — of supporting construction of another First Narrows crossing even though bridges in his riding carry more traffic and the people of the Vancouver area don't want a second First Narrows crossing.

He stated that the government should use the money which would be spent on the crossing to provide rapid transit and other measures to ease transportation problems on the Lower Mainland.

Reynolds told the House that one of the main reasons why B.C. voters reduced Liberal representation in that province in the Oct. 30 election was their disapproval of the government's penal reform program.

Expenses Cut

CALGARY (CP) — The University of Calgary has cut $750,000 from its 1973-74 expenditures to create a surplus that will be used in 1974-75.

Chairman Carl Nickle told the board of governors that if the total revenue in 1973-74 of $34 million was spent a substantial deficit would result the following year.

"As a board, we must now begin the procedure of trying to achieve a balanced budget and to build up a modest surplus to help us in the next two years," he said.

Warrants Tabled

OTTAWA (CP) — Governor-General's Warrants totalling $590 million were approved by the cabinet between the time parliament was dissolved for the Oct. 30 election and the first meeting of the new House Jan. 4.

The money, largely for unemployment insurance costs, was approved in three separate warrants — one for $234 million on Oct. 5, another for $39.4 million Nov. 16, and a third for $317 million Dec. 14.

A list of the warrants was tabled in the House Monday by Treasury Board President C. M. Drury at the request of Erik Nielsen (PC — Yukon).

Rebound Pouncers Give Cats Their Bounce

DALE COOK

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

VANCOUVER — Victoria Cougars got their bounce from the rebound pounce.

That was the recipe for success Monday as the Cougars, minus the Cook that brews up most of their goals, ended a five-game Western Canada Junior Hockey League losing streak by defeating Vancouver Nats 6-5.

Playing without Dale Cook, their captain and 33-goal scorer, and then losing winger Al McLaren, the Cougars bounced back from a 3-1 deficit with makeshift lines serving up Victoria's fourth road triumph of the season.

Cook, somewhat surprisingly, was left in Victoria. Co-coach Bob Briscoe said the 19-year-old forward, troubled in recent days by a kidney infection, had been ordered to cut down his weight.

That kidney problem has knocked some of the strength out of him, but we also felt he may be carrying too much weight. He's been ordered to cut down to 190 pounds, and he was a pound from it Monday," said Briscoe in explaining why Cook did not play.

Briscoe added that Cook "should be back" in the lineup tonight at Memorial Arena when Cougars play Swift Current Broncos, starting at 8.

Also expected back is McLaren. The hard-luck 18-year-old winger, who turned up ailing last week with a still-undetermined problem, felt well enough to play Monday. He dressed, took two shifts, then suffered an injury to his thumb. First feared fractured, it was later diagnosed as a dislocation.

Without Cook and McLaren, Eric Bishop, the other half of Victoria's two-man coaching staff, was forced to juggle his lines considerably.

The makeshift attack paid off. One "new" line — with Ron Poole centering Frank Hyndman and Carl Cureatz — produced four goals. The line of Brad Richardson, Don Williams and Jim Van Camp added the other two goals.

Hyndman scored three goals — all in the third period — while Poole, Cougars' best performer, added one goal and two assists. Cureatz was credited with two assists and deprived of a third. It was his pass that set up Poole's goal, but the helper went to Rick Williams, who was sitting on the bench.

Van Camp and Richardson added Victoria's other goals.

It was Cougars' willingness to go after rebounds in front of the Vancouver goal that returned Victoria its greatest dividend. The pouncing trail had been lacking in recent games.

It was there Monday, and Cougars counted four of their six goals by chasing up rebounds.

Also improved was the Victoria power play. Cougars counted twice while holding an edge in manpower and consistently threatened during other power-play chances.

Only 529 fans in the 15,570-seat Pacific Coliseum watched the game.

There were 872 fans on hand in the 11,000-seat Winnipeg Jets Arena to see the hometown Jets bow, 6-4, to Brandon Wheat Kings in Monday's only other game.

Centre Robbie Neale ended a month-long scoring famine by counting three times to spearhead Brandon's attack. Ron Chipperfield added two goals while Reg Malinowski scored twice and set up a third for Jets.

Monday's contest was the start of a nine-games-in-12-days grind for Cougars. After tonight's encounter with Swift Current, Cougars leave for a seven-game Prairie jaunt.

Nick on the Big Screen With Frazier-Foreman

Nicholas R. Zubray, promoter, continental boxing — Western Canada, blew into town on the weekend, and out again. You may have heard him.

Because he left behind a message:

"This guy Foreman could get to Frazier, you know," he said of the "Sunshine Showdown".

Nick, who will just be remembered as having been matchmaker for the ill-fated Muhammad Ali-George Chuvalo fiasco in Vancouver, was here on official business. He is the front man for the closed-circuit match up between Joe Frazier and George Foreman which will be presented on the big screen at Memorial Arena Monday night.

No, he wasn't the guy who lost the biggest bundle at Vancouver. That was Murray Pezim. What Nick lost was only "about $30,000", the $30,000 he didn't get from Pezim when he sold him the deal.

"I got back about $500," Nick ruefully admitted, "but I suppose I'll get some more some day. I could sue, but what good would that do? Murray's a good guy, and one of his stocks is going up."

And what did Pezim do?

"He dropped about 300 Gs," Nick said wistfully.

'Live' Here With a Good One

Before that, of course, Zubray and Pezim had been jointly shafted on another closed-circuit deal. They took Ali against Mac Foster in Tokyo for $7 a head at the Agrodome, but nobody told them that the fight was also on channel 5 in Seattle live!

We sure got hung up there, he said.

But now he's back in business. For $30,000 he's sold his soul and the Frazier-Foreman battle to Caesar Productions, or namely a restaurateur, Jerry Di Salvo. So, it's not his money to lose. He gets his first.

"Hell, this could be the biggest fight ever," he boomed, "and gee, you know I'd like to put on a live show here one time too."

Nick was asking, and who would it be? "Have to see how things go Monday," he answered, "but gosh, Ali—he would have to draw, wouldn't he? Whatever I did, it would be good."

Then about Monday. "Of course, Foreman hasn't lost... Frazier? ... nobody knows how far he's gone back... this could be the last fight for him before he meets Ali again for the championship... but if Foreman wins... what then?... it might even be better than Frazier-Ali..."

Nick was in form. His show-stopper here would be great at "a sawbuck a pop."

"This will be a fight," he stated.

Nick should know. He's been promoting around the west for years, mostly on the prairies. Some of his exhibits have been first class, and a financial success. Others have bombed.

Making Out-The Zubray Style

Under the heading of "some people I have known," Nick was once fished out of a river near Nelson with a wrestler who obviously had just as much of a zest for living as he has.

Sky Hi Lee, the wrestler, was Nick's companion that day. "What a character," he said. "Here we were on a slippery road and a bad bend, and suddenly we were airborne and headed for the river. We landed about three feet deep and the first thing Sky Hi did was to pry open the trunk, rummage around in it, and produce a bottle of rye."

"We had a drink right there, and that's the way the RCMP found us."

"Sky Hi? He's running a bar in England."

Stories: Nick's got a briefcase full, and gee, after listening to him, his pitch about Foreman perhaps being able to cold deck Frazier is at least intriguing.

"I'm telling you, he's emphasized."

"But then that might foul up the Frazier-Ali rematch."

"So, it's a screwy galie."

Somewhat, even if it is, isn't likely to matter to Nick.

He'll get along. Anybody who survived the last two, just has to.

The Lesser Lights Shine the Brightest

By The Canadian Press

Earl Heiskala, a left winger with few credentials as a sharpshooter, enjoyed a rare two-goal night at the expense of Alberta Oilers Monday night.

The 30-year-old Kirkland Lake, Ont., native, who had scored only seven times since the start of the World Hockey Association schedule, picked a timely occasion for his offensive heroics on behalf of Los Angeles Sharks who edged the Oilers 4-3.

His first goal, early in the second period, brought them back from a 2-1 deficit. And the second, which turned out to be the game-winner, left Alberta goaltender Jack Norris shaking his head in disbelief.

It was a harmless-looking shot from 80 feet out that bounced a foot in front of Norris, hitting his stick and slipping through his pads at 13:55 of the third period. Another unlikely marksman.

provided the winning goal as Houston Aeros nipped Chicago Cougars 5-4 in the only other WHA game of the night. It was fired by Brian Smith, who had only one previous goal to his credit, with less than four minutes remaining.

The Oilers, 4-1 winners over the Sharks in Los Angeles Saturday night, were never behind in the return meeting at Edmonton until Heiskala fired his second goal.

Alberta defenceman Bob Wall and Gary Veneruzzo of the Sharks traded goals in a 19-second span early in the first period and Ron Walters gave the Oilers a 2-1 lead before the first intermission.

Another Alberta goal by Jim Harrison brought replies from Heiskala and Steve Sutherland in the second period, setting the stage for the dramatic tiebreaker in the third. Smith's goal enabled the Aeros to maintain their third place tie with Los Angeles in the WHA's Western Division in a seesaw battle with the tailend Cougars, who lost their fifth game in a row.

Gord Labossiere opened the scoring for Houston but two goals by Larry Mavety put the visitors ahead early in the second period. Dunc McCallum brought the Aeros level, but Bob Liddington gave Chicago a 3-2 lead as the period ended.

VANCOUVER (CP) —

Some of the world's best women figure skaters start competition for the Canadian championship today and all but one are hoping for a stunning upset. The odd girl out is Karen Magnussen of North Vancouver, the defending champion who hopes to add the world crown to her collection this year.

It would be a shock if the 20-year-old university student lost, particularly since a change in scoring is expected to help her.

A brilliant free skater, Miss Magnussen was never particularly strong at tracing figures, but this year — for the first time — the figures will count only 40 per cent of a skater's total, down from 50 per cent last year.

Another 40 per cent will come from free skating and 20 per cent from compulsory free skating — a new wrinkle in the system.

In effect, the change gives the strong free skater an edge — and there's no one in Canada who can touch Miss Magnussen in that area.

When asked if the new system would help, she said she wasn't sure, but conceded that "it should."

That really makes the competition a fight for second place between the other 15 skaters. A Canadian Figure Skating Association official said there should be a good fight between Ruth Hutchinson, 21, of Vancouver, last year's runner-up, and Cathy Lee Irwin, a 20-year-old beauty from Toronto. Miss Irwin was third last year.

Miss Irwin competed in the Moscow Skates, an international competition, last month and finished first.

The worlds are in Bratislava, Czechoslovakia, next month and it's there that the scoring change could hurt Miss Magnussen. "The world champion — Trischa Schuba of Austria — has retired, leaving Miss Magnussen and Janet Lynn of the United States as her apparent heirs."

The Canadian girl was second in the Olympics and the world last year; Miss Lynn was third. However, Miss Magnussen built her lead on compulsory figures, finishing behind the American in free skating.

The compulsory free skating will require the senior women to perform an axel, a double axel or double lutz, a jump sit-spin, a jump combination, a fast upright spin, and a serpentine step sequence — all in a two-minute program.

Miss Magnussen will skate in the world championships no matter where she finishes — international skating union rules say a competitor who is in the top five at the world championship is automatically eligible to compete the following year.

That's why the second and third places are important at the Canadian championships — the Canadian team will be allowed to send two other women in addition to Miss Magnussen.

The situation is the same in the men's division — Toller Cranston of Toronto was fifth in the world last year and qualifies automatically — so the second and third men will get a trip to this year's world competition.

Shaver, said an official, could be a dark horse because of his free skating ability.

Five Victoria Bowlers Qualify in Tenpin Play

Five bowlers from the Greater Victoria area and one from Duncan have qualified for the provincial finals of the Canadian Tenpin Federation championships during area rollofs at Mayfair Lanes.

Jessie Loo, Viv Morgan and Bev Clarke qualified in the women's division while Art Westdorp, Dave Thomson and Bob Willis of Duncan topped the men's category.

Mrs. Loo rolled a 10-game total of 1,825, including a 237 game, to finish 25 points ahead of Helen Lynn in the duel for the single scratch division berth.

Mrs. Morgan and Mrs. Clark rolled 1,158 and 1,121, respectively, to top the handicap event.

Willis included 267 in his winning total of 1,975 in the scratch category while Westdorp (1,285) and Thomson (1,239) emerged with the handicap berths.

Minor Hockey Week Starts Sunday

Nearly 2,600 boys will be "on ice" during the four Greater Victoria celebrations of Minor Hockey Week in Canada starting Sunday.

Saanich Minor Hockey Association is first off the line and about 700 boys will participate in a series of games beginning at 4 p.m. Sunday in Pearekes Arena.

The Victoria Association, representing 640 young players, will hold its night starting at 4:30 p.m. Jan. 25 in Memorial Arena.

On Jan. 27, both the Esquimalt and Juan de Fuca associations will be on show. Esquimalt, which encompasses about 500 boys, begins activities at 4 p.m. in Esquimalt Sports Centre. Juan de Fuca, the youngest association of the four but now the largest with about 725 boys, starts its program at 11 a.m. in Juan de Fuca Arena.

HOCKEY TIPS

By Bobby Orr

The defenceman's main concern is keeping the opposition away from the goal area. About 75 per cent of all goals scored in the National Hockey League come from within a 20-foot circle of the net.

That's why it is important to prevent your opponent from moving in front of you in the goal area. He will then be in a position for a deflection or a straight shot.

A defenceman must be aggressive. Don't let anyone stand in front of the goal. Hockey is a fast game and the puck changes hands suddenly. An open player in the goal area could result in an easy score.

One other point: get rid of the puck quickly in your own end. Don't shoot it wildly down the ice but shoot the puck to a teammate or clear it over the blue line. Make sure your passes are crisp. A soft pass could lead to an interception and a possible goal.

Practice clearing the puck quickly to a forward. This can result in breakaways and can turn a defensive position into an offensive threat with one move.

HONORED as Australia's athlete of year for 1972 is swimmer Shane Gould. Olympic champion shortly will move to U.S. in order to enroll in Los Altos, Calif., high school.

Those Stockers Are Out of Sight

Roger Thompson blasted in three goals Monday night to lead Stockers' North Americans to a 5-1 triumph over Ingramham Buckaroos in a Victoria Intermediate Hockey League game at Memorial Arena.

The win padded Stockers' lead to 14 points over runner-up Buckaroos.

Gerry Caldwell, who had two assists, and Russ Pritchard added singles for Stockers while Dale Barber scored the goal that averted a shutout for Buckaroos.

Ken Olson, in the Stockers' net, made 23 saves, while Bucks' goalie Ron Griffiths stopped 43 shots.

Rape Accused 'Controlled by Satan'

A 22-year-old Colwood man, charged with rape, was "completely controlled by Satan" at the trial of George Jerome Makow, charged by Colwood RCMP following the Nov. 17 incident.

Representing the Crown in the case, before Mr. Justice William McIntyre, is Alan Bigelow assisted by Robert Edwards. Defence counsel is Harold Turnham.

The woman, a registered nurse, told the jury of three women and nine men she was hitch-hiking home at 11:30 p.m. Nov. 16. She was picked up by the accused on Douglas, near the Red Lion Motor Inn. There was another female passenger in the car.

The accused drove the other woman to Bellamy Road, north of Thetis Lake Park, then headed back towards the city. He turned on to a "smaller road," turned around, went back to the highway and "headed north. He then made a right turn at Millstream Road, leading into the Highland district, the woman testified.

After "about 10 minutes" he stopped and attempted to roll up the window. The window crank was broken so he got out and pulled it up by hand, then continued, she said.

A few moments later he stopped again and looked at the engine. He drove on and stopped a third time, shutting off the ignition, she testified.

The woman quoted the accused as saying, "I'll have to let the car cool down. My motor's overheated."

He "reached across the seat" and pulled part of her hair from under her coat. He began rubbing her thigh and she pulled his hand away and moved over. He then put his hand on her stomach, inside her nurse's uniform, and she again pulled it off, she testified.

"I kept trying to talk him out of it... I was hoping another car would come along. As I resisted him he became more agitated, more forceful," she said.

"He was completely controlled by Satan. I felt that, at this point, I had to comply," she told the jury.

She quoted Makow as saying, "The longer you make me wait, the rougher I'm going to get."

He ordered the woman to remove her clothing and she obeyed, she testified.

"I was forced to write a note stating that it was on my own free will," said the woman.

She told the jury that Makow dictated the note, lighted a match to look at it, said it was not satisfactory, and forced her to write a new one.

Both notes were earlier submitted as evidence by Colwood RCMP Const. Douglas McLeod.

"I was afraid that he would carry out his threats... He had removed his jeans down to his knees," she said.

He ordered the woman to lie down and then had intercourse which lasted about "four or five minutes," she told the court.

They both dressed and the accused drove her home, Hugh Macey, of Vancouver's RCMP Crime Detection Laboratory, testified he had received several articles of clothing for examination.

He told the jury he found human blood on one item and human seminal fluid on some others.

The trial, expected to last three days, continues at 10:30 a.m. today.

A man who cashed a fraudulent cheque for $150 at a Victoria supermarket was Monday fined $350 in provincial court and placed on one year's probation.

Frank Gary Curtis, 25, of Youbou, presented the cheque at a Safeway store on Foul Bay Road Nov. 24. In return, he received $51.48 in groceries and $98.52 in cash.

In court, Curtis said he intended to make restitution of all the cash owing to the store. Judge William Ostler ordered him to pay $40 to Safeway.

A 24-year-old man who tried to walk out of Eaton's without paying for the leather coat he was carrying was fined $250.

Francis Phillip Louie, of Port Alberni, pleaded guilty to stealing the coat from the men's wear department of the store Saturday lunchtime.

Thomas Eston Kownover, 26, of 1008 Hillside, who pleaded guilty Dec. 23 to stealing two shirts and a sweater, total value $36, from The Bay, was fined $250.

Mitzi Ada Jones, 19, of 643 John, was given a suspended sentence and placed on one year's probation for the Dec. 13 theft of a package of Gravol.

Miss Jones pleaded guilty Dec. 14 to the offence, which took place at Shoppers Drug Mart, 1302 Douglas.

In traffic court, a 38-year-old man was sent to jail for three months after twice being arrested for impaired driving.

Walter Hartmann, of 3386 Salsbury Way, almost collided with a police car as he left the Ingraham Hotel parking lot Saturday night. He drove through a stop sign on Douglas, causing other cars to brake violently.

When he was stopped by police, a blood-alcohol reading of .29 was obtained.

An hour later, Hartmann went to the service station to which his car had been towed and drove the vehicle away. When arrested the second time, Hartmann became belligerent with police.

Judge Harold Alder sent Hartmann to jail for three months and banned him from driving in Canada for one year.

Clarence Ronald Cripps, 34, of 1471 Hamilton, was fined $350 for impaired driving Sunday.

Gov't to Aid Winery Survey

KELOWNA (CP) — Agriculture Minister David Stupich said Monday the provincial government is prepared to pay up to 50 per cent, or $7,500, towards the cost of a survey into the possibility of establishing a grape growers' winery in the Kelowna area.

The minister told a group of growers that the least the government will do for them is if they decide to go ahead with a winery — would be to guarantee loans to the growers. But he also said there must be some guarantee that if the winery does, well, it won't be sold.

It has been proposed that a $3.6 million growers' winery be built in the Kelowna area over a three-year period.

Stupich also said he intends to introduce legislation at the spring session of the legislature to allow the provincial government to invest in and possibly guarantee projects such as grower-owned wineries.

Land Bid 'Rip-Off'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lawyer Charles Johnstone of Richmond told a public hearing Monday that the federal government's expropriation of Sea Island properties for access land to the proposed Hudson Street bridge is a "state rip-off".

"Every single bad feature of a big developer is present in the government's attitude and approaches. We have heard a great deal about corporate rip-offs. Here we have state rip-offs," said Johnstone, who represents Sea Island homeowners.

The first public hearing into the government expropriations ended Monday. A second hearing will begin Jan. 17.

During the last month recorded, November, there were 109 single family homes started and 440 apartment units.

A total of 44 of the 109 houses were started in Saanich and 328 of the 440 apartment units were started in Victoria.

The corporation said about 40 per cent of newly-completed single family homes in the Victoria area were vacant at the end of November and is about three-times as large as the number a year ago. Vacancies in multiple family units, however, are down from a year ago.

In Greater Vancouver, dwellin starts for the first 11 months totalled 12,459, down 11 per cent from the same period in 1971.

Starts of single family homes are up on the mainland but there is a marked decline in the numbers of new apartment units started during 1972.

On the mainland, starts of single family homes were high in Delta with 1,608 and Surrey with 1,001. Next came Richmond with 563. Vancouver City with 557 and Burnaby with 462.

Vancouver was the centre of most of the apartment construction with 1,892 units started but Burnaby also was active on that front with 1,000. Apartment starts were also brisk in Surrey where construction began on 962 units during the first 11 months of 1972.

Sawmill Picket Line Lifted

VANCOUVER (CP) — A picket line that stopped production at the Eburne sawmill of Canadian Forest Products last week was lifted Monday, said Syd Thompson, president of the Vancouver local of the International Woodworkers of America.

The sawmill's shutdown was an extension of labor trouble in the shingle industry. About 350 shingle mill employees have been on strike for five months at CFP's Hunting-Merritt shingle mill, which occupies the same site as the Eburne mill and MacMillan-Bloedel's Red Band Mill.

Thompson said the picket line was withdrawn because the union does not want to penalize other IWA members working at the sawmill.

"I suspect however, that this mill will be picketed quite a lot if talks don't get going," he added.

Doctor, Dentist Head Trustees

DUNCAN — A doctor and a dentist will head the Cowichan School Board this year.

At the inaugural meeting Monday general practitioner Gerald Philippson of Chemainus was elected chairman and Duncan dentist John Philip vice-chairman.

Philippson defeated last year's chairman Dave Bradbury and Philip was elected by acclamation.

Philippson was chairman of the Ladysmith School Board until August when the district was split, Ladysmith amalgamating with the Nanaimo School District and Chemainus joining Cowichan.

Philippson was elected to the Cowichan board in December. Philip is in his second year as trustee.

Committees will not be selected by the chairman and vice-chairman until the next meeting so that individual trustees can state their preference on committee assignments.

Although the decision to postpone committee appointments is a precedent, Philippson said he agreed with the motion because "I was not prepared to be elected and the suitability and desires of trustees on committees is important."

HARBOR FAVORED OVER CHANNEL

NANAIMO — The Inner Harbor is still the best site for proposed expansion of Nanaimo port facilities, oceanographer Dr. Jack Tully said in his third report on the project.

The other site on Northumberland Channel that has been suggested by Environment Minister Jack Davis would give no significant benefit to the environment, Tully's report said.

"Northumberland Channel has no existing transport or industrial facilities," he said.

The Inner Harbor already has rail yards, an assembly dock, access and shelter for ships and barge traffic from all inland waterways, he pointed out.

"It is reasonable to utilize the existing industrial situation rather than invade other pristine, recreational or residential areas which have been preserved or created at considerable expense."

The Inner Harbor development would stretch across 43 per cent of the Nanaimo River mouth, but Tully said tidal currents would not be increased by this.

Two-deep channels would be provided in the river mouth not blocked off, which would allow normal tide exchange, he said.

The seven-page report concluded: "South of the proposed development, there will be a tide flats area sheltered from wind effects."

"This should be an ideal area for the growth of food organisms, for small fishes and for the production and growth of crab larvae and young."

Pollution Fight At Port Hardy Going to Court

VANCOUVER (CP) — The battle against a pollution permit issued by the Pollution Control Board to the town of Port Hardy on northern Vancouver Island will be carried to the British Columbia Supreme Court and the provincial cabinet.

The permit would allow the discharge of treated sewage from a trailer park into Beaver Harbor.

Sean Hogan said Monday he has made a formal appeal to test the New Democratic Party government's attitude toward environmental problems.

$135,000 Slated For Flood Project

DUNCAN — City council plans to spend $135,000 this year to combat flooding in Centennial Heights and on Third Street.

A group of centennial ratepayers was told Monday evening that planning on the project in the area will start immediately.

City engineer Don Duncan said a 30-inch line will be installed from Arbutus Street and drain into Holmes Creek. The line will be more than 2,000 feet long. Estimated cost of project is $66,000.

Third Street's project will cost about $69,000.

Meanwhile, four roads in the Cowichan Valley have been closed due to flooding caused by intermittent heavy rains and a high tide Monday.

The Cowichan, Koksilah and Chemainus Rivers have overflowed causing Chemainus Highway, the Old Chemainus Highway, Trunk, Cowichan Bay and Tzouhalem Roads to be closed.

Homes in the Beverley-Heather Street area, North Cowichan, and Lang Street, Chemainus, which suffered severe damage at Christmas, have had no further problems.

City Core Traffic Sparks Clash

By BOLAND MORGAN
Times Staff

Will central Victoria cope with cars and trucks the way U.S. cities have, or will further-reaching European ideas prevail?

Businessmen in the central district badly want to see the traffic jams outside their doors unchoked — right now — by a complete system of one-way streets and more central parking.

A strong new group on city council favors a long-term approach involving ring-roads, mini-buses and traffic-free central streets.

This crucial clash of ideas emerged again at a regular meeting of the year-old Central Business District Advisory Committee on Monday.

City Traffic Engineer David Campbell, at the committee's invitation, told the dozen representatives it would cost about $250,000 to complete a one-way traffic system including Wharf, Government, Johnson and Pandora.

Most of the expense is buying corner lots so that corners can be rounded off to filter turning cars, he said.

The "number one hang-up" is buying an Imperial Oil gas station at Wharf and Government, Campbell said.

He said a new intersection system feeding Johnson St. Bridge traffic into Johnson and Pandora would be complete by May. It will be adaptable to either one or two-way traffic on Government and Wharf.

Mayor Peter Pollen said an offer of $270,000 had been made for the gas station site, which adjoins city-owned land on both sides (tourist office and former Ocean Cement lots) and would complete a section of the proposed Inner Harbor facelift.

The deal has still not been made, Pollen said.

Later the committee was told by architect Zale Tanner, commissioned by the Downtown Business Association, that underground parking for up to 275 cars could be hidden under the Ocean Cement-Imperial Oil site, if it became available.

... drafting design

Tanner showed sketches of a paved area at street level with cars underneath, and the view from the harbor dressed by raw stone walls and steps.

Committee member Reg Hind said the area could be used for a bus tour base in the summer, taking buses off the Causeway in front of The Empress hotel, and as a farmer's produce market, in the winter.

Pollen blasted the committee for "thinking purely as businessmen" and making a "typical response" to immediate traffic problems.

At the same time he denied that he or council had actually impeded the installation of one-way pairings.

He said he wanted balanced development, and the committee should not try to pressure council, but offer advice and help in that direction.

"I think one-way streets are going to kill your downtown," Pollen said. "You're responding purely as businessmen."

You haven't made any reference to what we're going to do about the inordinate traffic in lumber going through town to Ogden Point. This one-way system will just encourage that.

"You must have another dimension," he said.

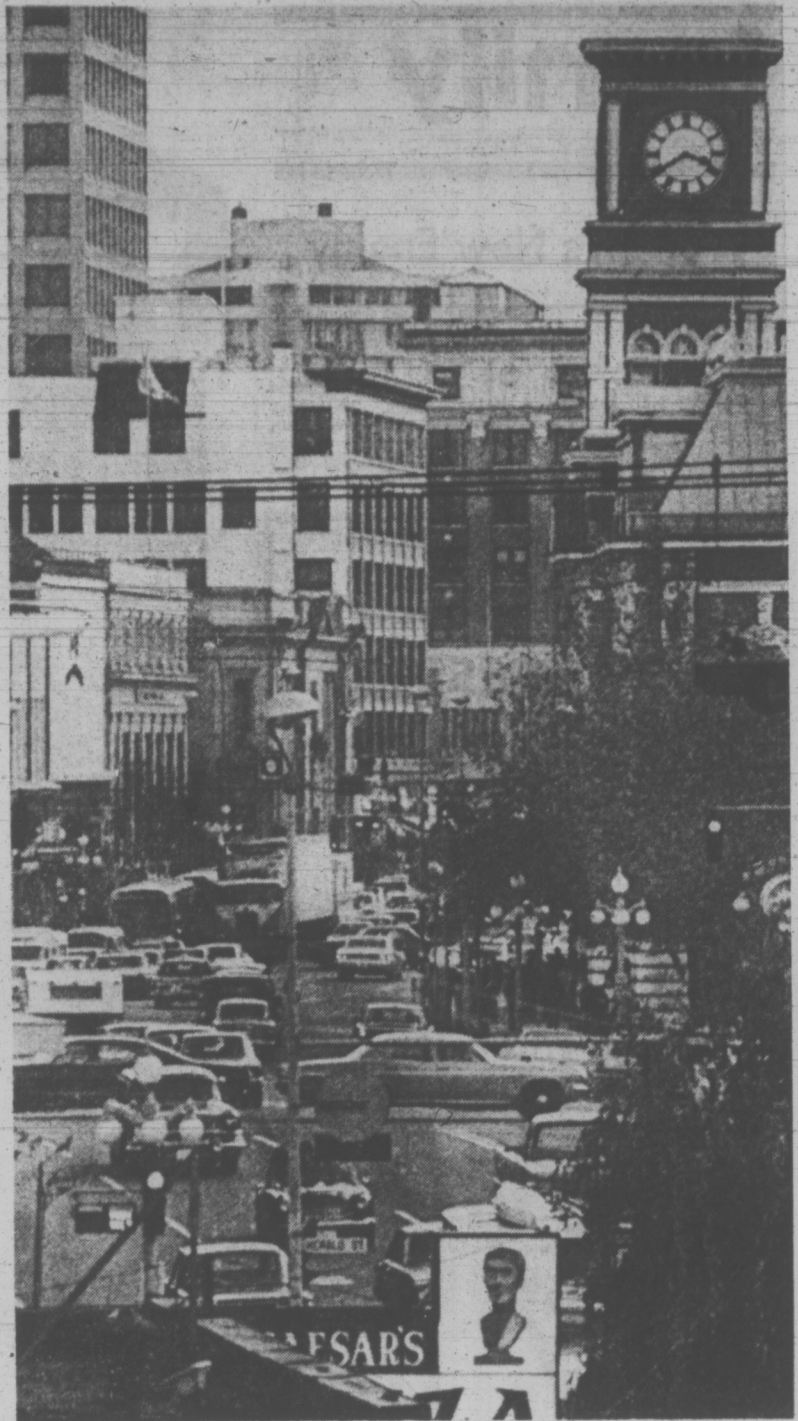

He told the committee that ring road plans were "going full blast" and they could relieve traffic pressure within 18 months.

Hind replied that the committee was trying to deal with the immediate problem of traffic jams.

He said the mayor's references to ring-roads, pedestrian areas and bus services were "all off in the future."

"This is ideal," he said. "I think we all agree with it. But what do we do right now?"

The committee agreed to recommend the one-way systems again (it recommended them before, in June, 1972) and to show its underground parking lot idea to architect Arthur Erickson, who is making a design for the Inner Harbor facelift.

Mayoral Backing Expected For School Board Stand

Victoria Times

TUESDAY, JAN. 16, 1973

SECOND SECTION

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

The four Greater Victoria mayors are expected to take a joint stand Wednesday in support of the Greater Victoria School District, where blue collar workers have been on strike since Friday.

The mayors — Peter Pollen of Victoria, Hugh Curtis of Saanich, Frances Elford of Oak Bay and Art Young of Esquimalt — are to meet privately just before the inaugural meeting of the Capital Regional District board.

Curtis has already made his position clear — he is in "solid support" of the school district.

"I certainly want to make it very clear I offer full support to the Greater Victoria school board in this very unfortunate dispute, particularly unfortunate because it interferes with education," he said.

The school district offer of a nine-per-cent raise in each year of a new two-year contract was "more than generous."

"As awkward as it is for parents, for students and for others, I just don't see how the board could accede to anything approaching the union demands without setting off a local government wage spiral that would be really staggering in its costs," he said.

Curtis views the dispute between the school district and the 269-member Local 382 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees as a "curtain raiser" for other negotiations under way between CUPE locals and municipalities.

One of these disputes, involving outside workers for the city of Victoria, has already proceeded to the mediation officer stage after only two meetings between the two sides.

'Direct Relationship'

Curtis said the school district-CUPE strike "will be seen later to have a direct relationship in negotiations between the municipalities and other CUPE locals."

Pollen, who initiated the mayors meeting, said that, as mayor, he would "rather not make any comment now," preferring to see a joint statement.

"As a father, I think that something is definitely wrong not only with our bargaining process but our community responsibilities when our children have to be pawns in the bargaining process," he said.

"It is very lamentable and tragic," he said.

CUPE representative Alex Markides said he anticipates an even longer strike if civic leaders jump in on the school district's side. But he withheld further comment until he sees what the mayors' statement says.

He said while it is "always possible" that a school district settlement could be a pattern-setter elsewhere, "it's completely separate negotiations."

Asked if he expects a long strike, he said "they'll drag it. Why shouldn't they?"

But he said that for every 10 days the strike lasts, the school district can afford to add 10 cents per hour in benefits with a one-year contract.

Earlier, school district officials said the 1972 wage bill for the janitors, laborers, groundsmen and tradesmen was $2 million, indicating a saving of almost $40,000 a week.

A meeting of school district clerical and secretarial staff, members of another local of CUPE, was held this afternoon. Markides said the meeting was an informational one for the inside employees, who have not been crossing picket lines.

The two sides in the strike have not only been unable to reach agreement on the issues, but differ on just what are the issues.

Principals to Seek Jr. High Reopening

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

Junior high school principals are meeting with school board officials today in hopes that junior high schools can be opened for work assignments by the end of the week.

All junior high schools, with the exception of the small Dean Heights school, were closed when CUPE maintenance workers went on strike last Friday.

While most elementary schools remained open and arrangements were made for all high school students to attend Victoria Senior Secondary, the school board decided to simply dismiss all 7,000 junior high students for fear of vandalism, as experienced by other districts in similar situations.

"Also we only have seven supervisory personnel to handle 54 schools," district superintendent A. J. Longmore explained, "so we decided to work from the known to the unknown."

"Now we're going to meet with all the principals to look at all the angles," Longmore said, "and decide if it's feasible to open the junior highs for certain periods of time."

Peter Boldt, principal of Oak Bay Junior said he hoped the schools could be opened for about two hours, at least every second day, so students could get assignments from each subject teacher.

"I'm really worried about this situation," Boldt said. "The teachers are here and doing odd jobs but after a couple of days it will be the students who suffer."

"I don't think the children will be cold for just a couple of hours," he said, "because they'll be moving around so much."

School board chairman Peter Bunn said some of the greatest support for reopening the schools had come from Arbutus junior secondary where parents have banded together and offered to keep the school running.

Bunn said the whole school system "seems to be in very good order today."

"Things are looking very positive today," he said, "and schools are functioning much closer to normal than on Monday."

Seven elementary schools, closed Monday because of older heating systems, were opened today mostly by special arrangement.

George Jay elementary reopened on a regular basis at 9 a.m. today.

At the following schools, pupils except kindergarten children, were to report at 10 a.m. for assignments and instruction regarding attendance for the remainder of the week: Lampson, South Park, Macaulay, Oaklands, Sir James Douglas and Margaret Jenkins.

Victoria senior secondary was again open for all Grade 11 and 12 high school students and staff, with Oak Bay, Mount Douglas and Mount View students reporting at 9 a.m. and Esquimalt, Reynolds and Victoria high students coming at 1 p.m.

Principal Duncan Lorimer said he was "very pleased" with the co-operation and attitude displayed by the students Monday as they crowded into the central school to receive assignments and instruction from their respective teachers.

6-Block Mall Asked For Victorian Days

If the Victorian Days Committee has its way, the focus of the week-long celebrations May 21 to 27 will be a "gigantic mall" six blocks long on Douglas featuring an open air market, street dances and side shows.

The city is looking at a proposal to close Douglas for the week to all north-south traffic between Fisgard and Broughton, with east-west streets remaining open on a controlled basis.

Building regulations would be relaxed to let store owners put up false fronts, decorations and other diversions "in keeping with the over-all theme."

Along the street there would be static displays, artists at work, harrow boys and flower girls, the Rockathon rocking chair contest, ethnic dances, street dances, garden rest areas and other ideas.

The closing of Yates Street hill from the fire hall to Vancouver at the end of the week on Sunday, May 27 has already been approved.

The organizers also want to have the Memorial Arena, McPherson Playhouse, Athletic Park and Beacon Hill Park at a greatly reduced rent or free" so that the Victorian Days Society can make a charge.

The whole thing is designed to form a "bridge" between the annual Victoria Day parade May 21 and the Swiftsure yacht race the following weekend.

Scheduled events for the week are a Beaux Arts Ball, soap box derby, antique car display, Malahat Marauders skill show, variety show and military ball.

The organizers also seek permission to use the Inner Harbor for canoe and rowing races.

The Victorian Days Committee is part of the Loyal Order Victorian Enthusiasts formed two years ago to promote Victoria. The committee has been meeting weekly since September making the celebration plans.

The city's public works and traffic control committee agreed to discuss the proposals further with the organizers.

DOOR SLAMMED ON FULLER BID

A request by the Fuller Brush Co. Ltd. for relaxation of licensing requirements for salesmen received the brush-off by Oak Bay council's finance committee today.

The company asked the committee to consider waiving the required $1,000 cash deposit for each salesman in favor of a $1,000 surety bond.

Ald. Shirley Dwyer observed that all licensees in the municipality should be treated the same and the committee agreed to let the present regulations stand.

Municipal administrator E. H. Hart observed:

"This is a greater deterrent and helps keep transient high-pressure salesmen out."

Equal Pay Campaign 'Smoke Screen Issue'

Equal pay for women is a "smoke screen issue" in the strike by school board maintenance workers, board chairman Peter Bunn said today.

Bunn pointed out that the 1971-1972 contract with the Canadian Union of Public Employees local 382 created the position of matron and the union agreed then it was to be a different duty with a different pay scale.

The issue was put to a test in June, 1972, when a matron complained she was being discriminated against in contravention of the Human Rights Act.

Bunn said John Sherlock, director of the Human Rights

Act, made a decision in favor of the board on Aug. 3.

The decision read: "The investigation revealed that male janitors perform physical work not required of janitresses therefore the difference in rate of pay is based on factors other than sex and does not constitute a failure to comply with section four of the Human Rights Act."

Board spokesmen said matrons are not required to do the following functions performed by janitors: scrubbing floors, cleaning outside windows, cleaning light fixtures, changing light bulbs, working nights or being responsible for the security of schools.

Alex Markides, spokesman for the union, said women's rights is one of key issues in the contract dispute because women do identical work during the day shift, and receive $2.85 an hour compared to $3.60 an hour received by men.

"They changed the ball game," Markides said, arguing that in the last contract matrons were supposed to work from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. but had been actually been starting as early as 6:30 a.m.

Some of the matrons, he said, were "red circled" when the classification was introduced — that is, their pay rate which at the time was higher than the matron's rate was pegged and not allowed to rise until the matron rate reached that level.

$250,000 Sits and Waits For Pulp Mill Smell Solution

Somewhere in that maze of red tape, ledgers and accountants known as "the provincial treasury," the princely sum of $250,000 lies fallow.

To the layman, $250,000 translates into winning the Irish Sweepstakes twice on the same day or being able to pay off the mortgage on not only your own house, but the houses of all your neighbors as well, with enough left over to buy the most expensive sports car available.

The money sits, in a special fund all its own, having been established in 1970 by the former Social Credit administration. The lot was originally intended to entice researchers in the province to come up with a solution to the increasing problem of pulp mill pollution in some of B.C.'s mill towns.

The $250,000 was to go to "the first individual or company who successfully eliminates the air pollution from a B.C. kraft pulp mill" according to specifications and conditions set down by the provincial resources department.

Former resources minister Ray Williston had outlined the details of the contest to reporters on March 24, 1970, setting a deadline for establishment of a special committee in early 1972 to evaluate the applicants of the contest.

Needless to say, the contest never got off the ground. When early 1972 rolled around, Williston said there had been a considerable amount of interest shown in the contest, but that it would be a while before an evaluation committee would be established.

That "while" has turned into a long time, taking us up to the present.

Monday, Resources Minister Bob Williams had little to say about the award, except that he does not think handing out money is the way to solve this type of problem.

One of his deputy ministers, Walter Raudsepp, told the Times earlier that he was awaiting direction from the minister on the contest but that he did not think the minister had been advised about it since the NDP government had taken office in September.

And so the money sits. What happens with it from here is anyone's guess. But it is likely that it will dissolve, like just so many taxpayers' dollars, into that great wasteland known as "general revenue," to be divvied up once again in someone's fiscal plans.

WENDY DEY - EDITOR

Woman's New Enemy

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Harvard theologian believes great religious thinkers have denigrated women through their writing for centuries. Rosemary Reuther said in Vancouver recently that philosophers such as Aristotle, Plato, St. Augustine and Martin Luther had little more than contempt for women.

She said the ancient Greeks did much to set woman down the road to serfdom by splitting reality into two distinct levels, with maleness being identified with the upper realm, and femaleness with the lower. Successive cultures continued the trend, she maintained.

Ed Helgesen describes work as 'underwater farming'

Meat Price Rise Boost to Oyster

By NICOLE STRICKLAND

Unlike most farmers Ed Helgesen harvests his crops almost every day, according to the movement of the tides.

And unlike most crops, Helgesen's product is reputed to be a sexual stimulant, second only to milk in its nutritive value, and considered by some to be a luxury food.

What kind of crop does Helgesen raise? Oysters, and the Helgesen family has been raising them for 20 years, at their Cooper's Cove Oyster Farm, near Sooke.

"It's simply underwater farming," explains Helgesen, general manager of the family business. "All the seeding, growing, and harvesting takes place on the tidal flats, in a rotating process."

"The seed can be imported from Japan or harvested from nature when the oysters spawn. They release their seed into the water and it clings to rocks, logs, and bottles, where it begins to develop its shell."

"When we harvest from nature we use oyster shells to reclaim seed. We punch a hole in the shells, hanging them on wires and taking them up to Pendrell Sound for the spat, or seed, to cling to. The seeding is done by machine on our underwater acreage."

"Our seed area is the most protected and also the fastest growing area for the first year. The seed change from about one-sixteenth of an inch to an inch in that time, with some growing faster, and some slower."

Helgesen says that it takes two to four years for the oyster to reach maturity, and when the picking time comes around, only the most mature table oysters are picked.

"We pick by hand, which can be pretty heavy work," he says. "Mechanical pickers such as dredgers do exist, but they take everything, resulting in more waste."

The picked oysters from the farm's lease land, as well as other oysters picked by growers in up-island locations, are then hauled by truck into the processing plant at the farm.

Working at full capacity, the plant is capable of processing 24,000 oysters daily, in two shifts. With lightning speed, the oyster shells are pried open and the delicate meat carved from the shell.

Helgesen says it is possible to eat the oysters immediately, with no cooking, but confesses to a fondness for the pan-fried version himself.

"Oyster sales are on the increase," he says, "perhaps partly because of their nutritional value, and perhaps because they are cheaper than meat right now, and I hope they'll stay that way."

The shucked oysters are shipped to retail stores, restaurants, and wholesalers, from where they find their way into oyster stews, oyster burgers, and hors d'oeuvre plates.

"We make sure that we put the oysters back into the sea so they won't be over-farmed," Helgesen says. "They are a most interesting product to raise. Did you know that they change their sex every year — one year they're male, the next year they're female...? Oh, there are all kinds of interesting things about oysters."

Perhaps the most interesting to a layman is the pearl one always hopes to find in one's oyster.

"Oh, those..." shrugs Helgesen. "We find those all the time. They come in all sizes and shapes; they're really very irregular. What do we do with them? Oh, we just throw them away."

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Lighthearted stance now actually proves more productive. Ride with tide. Socialize. Leave details for another time. There are obstacles and it is best to go around rather than over them. You will comprehend. Sagittarian could play key role.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Study Aries message. Don't expect too much now and you won't be disappointed. Relatives are confused but sincere. Know it and avoid needless conflict. Take special care while in traffic. Check calls.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Avoid extravagant gestures. Give logic equal time with impulse. Some changes are in order, but they need not be rushed or inspired by panic. Member of opposite sex is not positive about feelings. Understand and be mature.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You handle problems now as if they were made to order. Means cycle is high and you are at right place at right time. Key is confidence. Fortnightly attitude State case. Let others know you do know score.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Stand back and take stock. Someone may be trying to sell you bill of goods. Insist on verification of facts. Discard rumors. Avoid wishful thinking. Look behind scenes. You could become romantically involved with one who flashes brilliant eyes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Don't mix money and friendship. Study Leo message. Be realistic about responsibilities. Relationships with opposite sex intensify. Reward due from past efforts. Older individual, perhaps Capricorn, plays prominent role.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Some things have to be removed and replaced. This includes material objects, concepts. Your social shift. One in authority wants you to make revisions. Put aside the past. Look to future. Get rid of burden not rightly your own.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): New approach results in greater opportunity. One who seemed indifferent actually cares now—very much. Know it and respond accordingly. Accent is on your philosophy. Your overall concepts, your real desires.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You're drawn between practicality and romantic notion. Follow inner feelings. Be true to yourself. By following through on money you actually will be doing what is constructive. Aquarian is in picture. Money question needs further probing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Lie low. Don't push too hard. Mate, partner has right to express definite view. Know it and act like you know it. Those who have authority seem determined to create problems. Be diplomatic enough to seek alternatives.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Low-key approach now is best for you. Check sources. Renew contacts. But make no rash decisions. Get acclimated. Scorpio can play key role. Follow through on appointments. Don't skip exercise schedule.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): One who has been pretending is likely to make amendments. Be ready to change. Travel variety. Where there was inactivity, there now will be a flurry. Gemini, Virgo persons are in picture. Romance is on horizon.

A Quick Marriage Test In Interest of Realism

When women's magazines aren't exhorting me to knit my own lamp shades or create memorable holiday centrepieces out of the cardboard cylinders from toilet paper rolls, they invariably resort to testing my marriage. Does he bring you gin and tonic in the bathtub? Do you tuck love notes into his lunch bucket?

In the interest of realism, I have devised the following marriage test:

More Evidence Against Smoking

CHICAGO (AP) — A group of American researchers has come up with further evidence linking lung cancer with cigarette smoking.

A report published in the Journal of the American Medical Association says the Philadelphia pulmonary neoplasia research project followed the medical history of 6,027 volunteers for 10 years.

During that time 121 developed lung cancer. All were smokers.

Lung cancer was found to be twice as likely if the patient smoked more than 20 cigarettes a day.

Authors of the report are members of the Philadelphia project, the American Cancer Society and the National Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association.

E. B. Viberg is keeping his inventory down

Cost of Leather Runs Rampant

By WAYNE HARDING
Times Staff

Prices of many leather goods rose between 40 and 80 per cent last year and they will increase by as much again in the next few months.

Retailers and manufacturers claim they can do little about it, other than to use and recommend substitute products.

The phenomenal increase is caused by a chain of events that starts on the world market.

Exports Cut

Argentina and Brazil, suppliers of one third of the world's hides, have cut exports to build up their herds—depleted by hoof-and-mouth epidemics—and to develop their own processing industries.

The subsequent higher demand for Canadian and U.S. hides created sharp price increases at the pre-tanning level of the industry last fall. In one variety of hide, the price rose from 11 cents per pound to 38 cents per pound in three months.

Manufacturers and wholesalers, who must catalogue their goods many months ahead, were reluctant to commit themselves to large orders of leather from tanners who must buy hides on a week-to-week basis.

"Naturally, we're keeping our inventory down as low as we can—at these prices," says one of the tanneries' customers, E. B. Viberg of Viberg Boot Manufacturing Ltd., 662 Herald.

Still the inflated prices can't be avoided: Viberg is paying $1.13 per square foot for boot leather that sold for 58 cents per square foot a year ago.

At the same time, efforts to hold down inventories have resulted in a production lag at the tanneries—some are faced with the prospect of three-day weeks—at a time when leather products are in high demand.

It's a demand created by the trend-setters who have brought full-length leather coats and knee-high boots into vogue.

"But there is leather if people will pay for it and it looks like they will," says J. M. Moore, sales vice president of Dominion Tanners Sales Corp. Ltd., of Winnipeg.

"People like the genuineness of leather and when they become affluent they demand it," he says.

Pay for It

And indeed they are paying for it. Dick Godfrey of Godfrey's Luggage and Leather Repairs Ltd., 712 Cormorant, gives some examples.

In December 1971, Godfrey sold, after a standard markup, bridle leather at $1.68 per square foot; the price is now $2.70. Garment leather, during the same period, rose from $1.25 per square foot to $2.36.

Godfrey notes an additional cost factor for West Coast buyers: the establishment of distributorship for one of the major tanneries in Vancouver—another middle-man who adds to handling costs.

Not all leather products have increased in price so rapidly. Wallets and purses, in which labor creates a bigger part of the cost than does material, have remained reasonably stable.

Tom McMartin of McMartin's Luggage and Leather Goods, 1605 Douglas, says, "I have items here that were $10 a few years ago and aren't much over $11 now."

He notes also that leather has been almost completely replaced by synthetic fabrics in luggage and, as a result, prices of these items have not risen rapidly.

Use of synthetics in women's and children's shoes has tended to help hold down the prices of these items too.

But the material of men's footwear continues to be almost exclusively leather and this is where the price increase will be most apparent.

Control Price

"We're trying to control it through our buying procedures. But, without a clear indication of a peak in the increase, if there will be one, makes it hard," says the manager of a Victoria department store shoe department.

Local dealers, who are passing on the price increase to their customers, feel they have no control over the situation and they cannot predict a levelling off.

But Dominion Tanners' Moore says he has "the feeling" there might be some stability returning to the hide market. If his feeling is right, it won't show at the retail level for half a year.

Continued development of synthetic products, fashion changes and the price themselves will bring the rampant price of leather under control. But it's too far away to help the consumer's shoe and clothing budget this year.

Here's What You Can Do

How can the average shopper offset the run-away price of leather goods?

January is a good month to ask this question.

Most shoe and clothing stores are holding their post-Christmas sales now and there are good buys to be made.

This is particularly true in the case of shoes. Mark-downs, found in a random sampling of shoe stores in downtown Victoria, were as much as 40 per cent. In all cases, the goods offered were from regular stock—not brought in for the event.

Styles and qualities vary too greatly for price comparisons—particularly in the case of women's shoes.

Best buys in men's shoes were in standard styles: Chelsea and desert boots and round-toed slip-on shoes that survive fashions. Popular elevated boots and shoes are seldom on sale.

In view of the continuing increase in leather prices, it might be a good year to put one's whole shoe budget for the year into one month's shopping.

For other leather goods such as jackets, cases, belts: explore the new synthetic fibres.

Quebec's Begin Makes History

Liberal Monique Begin speaks

OTTAWA (CP)—Attractive 36-year-old Monique Begin made history Monday. She became the first woman from Quebec to make a speech in the commons.

Leading the cheering section after she completed her 20-minute speech was Grace MacInnis (NDP - Vancouver Kingsway), a veteran MP.

Science Minister Jeanne Sauvé, (L-Montreal Ahuntsic), who replied briefly to a query during the earlier question period, has yet to make her maiden speech in the Commons.

Miss Begin, a Liberal who represents the north Montreal riding of St. Michel, drew praise from Mrs. MacInnis when she said family allowances should be paid to all Canadian families regardless of their income.

She said the demands on parents are greater these days and even with incomes in excess of $10,000 a year parents find it hard to bring up families.

Miss Begin, a former researcher with the Canadian radio-television Commission, also suggested guaranteed annual incomes for women with large families whose husbands have abandoned them or died.

McCune's Folly: Forty Rooms

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—Walter McCune's wife, Carole, wanted a palatial home overlooking Phoenix, so he built it for her. Now the dream house—a $5.8 million hilltop mansion he didn't quite finish—is for sale.

Must Sell

McCune, who inherited $50 million from his father, spent much of his fortune building the 40-room concrete and stone mansion atop Sugar Top Hill, and now it must be sold in the multi-million-dollar category—to settle the estate.

The buyer will need several hundred thousand dollars more to complete and furnish the home next door to the home of Sen. Barry Goldwater.

Auctioneer's have spent the past two weeks preparing to sell the mansion and its antique furnishings.

Why did McCune build it?

"He was a sweet, soft-hearted guy and his wife, Carole, told him she wanted a palatial home on a hill overlooking Phoenix. So he built it for her," a long-time McCune employee said.

But the couple separated in 1962 and the final touches weren't put on the house before McCune died of kidney failure April 13, 1971, at age 68.

Changes made at Mrs. McCune's behest during construction increased cost of the house.

The ceiling in the huge living room was torn out and replaced three times. The ceiling in her all-glass bedroom was replaced with solid mirror inlays. Three overhauls were made of the mammoth marble bathtub in her personal bathroom—once because the stone bottom was too cold.

Can't Rent

Since the area is zoned for single-family dwellings, the buyer must use it as such and won't even be allowed to rent out the three-bedroom, three-bath guest house, which McCune lived in for a while after his marriage broke up.

Friends said McCune's fortune, inherited from his father, Pittsburgh banker and oilman Charles McCune, had dwindled to a fraction of its original $50 million by the time of his death.

McCune, a nephew of billionaire Andrew Mellon, left his estranged wife only $100 in his will. But their divorce had not become final and Mrs. McCune, who lives in San Diego, Calif., will receive a larger share of the inheritance.

Sale of the personal items in McCune's estate will begin Saturday and continue through the following Wednesday. Sale of the mansion itself is being conducted through private negotiations and the San Diego probate judge must decide which bid will be accepted. That decision is not expected for several weeks.

Mother Must Choose Childbirth Method

DEAR ABBY: I am pregnant for the first time and a neighbor of mine is trying to talk me into having my baby the "natural" way. She said she took this course at the "Y" in her sixth month, and learned some breathing exercises and muscle control, and had her baby without taking even an aspirin. She said there was some pain, but not nearly as bad as she thought it would be. Also her husband took the course, too, and he stayed with her during the labor and delivery, which made it a shared experience.

I am undecided as to whether to have my baby the natural way or not. My husband says I'm crazy to suffer any pain at all if I can avoid it, and I'm inclined to agree with him.

On the other hand, if your husband is right there and sees what you have to go through, it might make him appreciate you more. Please be honest. My doctor says it's up to me. — Debbie

DEAR DEBBIE: It is up to you to decide whether you want to grin and bear it, or take an anesthetic. (The proponents of the "grin and bear it" method swear by it.) As I see it, childbirth will be a truly "shared experience" only when a couple has twins—the wife giving birth to one and her husband giving birth to the other.

DEAR ABBY: A woman who was married for 46 years wrote a long story about how hard her husband was to live with. She asked you whether she should choose divorce or suicide, and she signed herself "Suffered Enough."

You told her divorce was preferable. Are you married to a divorce lawyer, Abby? — Nossy

DEAR NOSSY: No. Are you married to an undertaker?

New-Born Junkies Addicted in Womb

By LLOYD TIMBERLAKE

NEW YORK (Reuter). — Last year at least 1,300 babies were born in this city into a trap from which few full-grown adults have the strength and resources to escape.

Shortly after birth the infants, often premature, showed such signs as tremors, vomiting, diarrhea, fever, breathing difficulties, extreme irritability, sweating and convulsions—essentially the same symptoms as those of a junkie in the prison cell going without heroin.

The babies are, in fact, addicts: day-old junkies hooked in the womb by the heroin in their mothers' blood. The signs are the outward manifestations of the horror of heroin withdrawal. Another sign, not shared by older junkies, is the eerie high-pitched cry of such children.

COMPLETE STUDY

Dr. Carl Zelson, professor of pediatrics at New York Medical College Metropolitan Hospital Medical Centre, and two colleagues have recently completed a 10-year study on the problem.

Metropolitan Hospital is ideally located for such a study. It sits on the edge of East Harlem, a black and Puerto Rican ghetto beset by crime, prostitution, drug addiction and unemployment.

In 1960, Metropolitan delivered 26 addicted babies, one out of every 164 births. In 1972, 70 were born, but the ratio rose to one out of every 27 births.

Babies who show mild signs are left to fight it out on their own, without medication. The rest are treated with the sedative chlorpromazine, which keeps the babies in a light sleep between feedings. Such treatment may last six to seven weeks.

Other hospitals use paregoric, an opium derivative, to stabilize the condition.

EFFECTS ARE LASTING

Yet Zelson believes that narcotics in the blood of the unborn infant produce long-term growth and development problems.

"So we don't like to use narcotics to treat narcotics," he said.

Early results show that "10 to 15 per cent show some type of developmental difficulty, not related to the environment," Zelson said. All children whose brainwaves were tested during sleep showed abnormal patterns, he said.

SUBSTITUTE IS WORSE

Of more concern were Zelson's findings on heroin versus methadone addiction in infants.

Methadone is a substitute which gives the user a longer "high" without the crashing "lows" felt by those coming down from a dose of heroin. It allows users to carry on relatively normal lives and more of Zelson's mothers are using it.

Zelson said in an interview that methadone babies show more signs of withdrawal and more severe signs than heroin babies.

COLD REMEDY AD CLAIMS BLOWN UP

WASHINGTON POST — The U.S. Federal Trade Commission Monday removed some of the mystery surrounding advertising claims by makers of 35 popular cough and cold remedies sold over the counter.

Among the secrets revealed were:

The "fever reducer" touted in ads for Dristan is aspirin.

It is "not the drug" in Congespirin which makes it a children's aspirin, "but the size of the dose of aspirin." The dose is smaller.

What makes Pertussin Plus a "nighttime-cold medicine" is antihistamine, which causes drowsiness.

A summer cold is a different animal," Contac ads tell viewers, because two-thirds of those people responding to a survey "perceived a difference between summer and winter colds."

These and other revelations were contained in almost 3,000 pages of documents submitted by 16 companies to back up claims for some of the more well-known and heavily advertised non-prescription cold preparations.

As have other industries that have filed such reports with the FTC, many of the companies sent in reams of technical documents the average consumer would not easily comprehend.

There are large conclusions based on small surveys. There also disparagement of competitors' products — in some cases even of different products from the same manufacturer.

Bristol-Myers Co., in material submitted to back up claims that 4-Way Nasal Spray "gives the fastest decongestant relief possible," submitted the results of a laboratory study of different products among 80 people "with moderate or severe 'stuffy noses'" but it failed to explain how the 80 were found or selected.

The report acknowledges that with such small numbers, "any statistical tool is stretched to its limits."

Contac urges people not to "ask a cold tablet or night-time liquid to do Contac's job. They can't," because "only Contac can work continuously, day and night," in support of that claim. Contac compared itself to five other cold remedies whose dosage is every four hours four times a day.

That's only 16 hours' protection.

they said. "This is 68 million Americans."

tion in a 24-hour day, Contac pointed out, whereas Contac is taken twice a day at 12-hour intervals for "continuous relief."

Contac did not compare itself to other 12-hour cold preparations.

Smith, Kline & French laboratories even made a new claim in the materials it sent in.

"Contac has been used by half the population of the United States age 18 and over,"

The company failed to back up that figure.

Asked to document its claim that "25 million men, women and children use Suerets for minor sore throat pain," Merck & Co., Inc., said a survey was conducted in 1971 of 20,000 households chosen to be representative of 62.9 million households in the United States.

It doesn't tell you how they were chosen, but says 15,679 returned the questionnaire.

Of those who answered, 19.7 per cent over the age of 19 said they use Suerets. Since the total U.S. population that age totals 127,186,000, it was estimated the 25,056,000 use Suerets in the general population.

DEATH PENALTY BACKED: POLL

PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI) — Capital punishment for murderers meets with the approval of most adults in the U.S. according to the results of a Gallup Poll.

"In a survey conducted in December, a majority of 57 per cent of adults, 18 and older, said they favor the death penalty for persons convicted of murder," the poll said.

"This percentage represents an increase in support since March, 1972 when 50 per cent favored the death penalty."

MILLIONAIRE'S WIFE FREED

Marilyn Lastman, wife of flamboyant Toronto millionaire Mel Lastman, Monday said that she had been abducted for 10 hours earlier in the day after being told that her husband had suffered a heart attack.

She did not report how she eluded her kidnappers and according to Toronto police no ransom was paid.

Lastman, who made his money by staging wild publicity stunts for his chain of discount appliance stores, is also mayor of a Toronto suburb.

DUBLIN — Former Irish Republican Army leader Sean Mac Stiofain, today ended the prison hunger strike he had vowed to maintain until death.

On IRA orders, Mac Stiofain started taking nourishment for the first time in eight weeks.

He started the fast last November in protest against a six-month sentence for membership of the IRA. Until then, he was chief of staff of the IRA Provisional wing which wages most of the guerrilla warfare in Northern Ireland.

Sources say his status in the movement is badly reduced and he has been replaced as chief of staff by a so-far-un-disclosed figure.

In ordering Mac Stiofain to end the fast, the Provisionals said it could no longer serve any useful purpose.

MacSTIOFAN

If Wilcox fails to carry out the mission, he can expect to go to jail, Sepe warned.

Sickle-cell anemia is a hereditary blood disease present in about one out of every 500 newborn blacks. Doctors estimate as many as one in 10 blacks suffer from the malady.

MIDLAND, Ont. — Dr. Peter Brasher, a local surgeon who refused to fill out the long census form in 1971 claiming that some questions were "impertinent," was fined $150 or 10 days in jail Monday.

He was convicted of withholding information by refusing to complete the census report.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — "Hey, that's my car," George Oliver of Montreal shouted as he glanced out his rearview mirror while driving near here.

"I was relating the story of how my car was stolen in Dorval, Que., to a friend," Oliver said, "and at that instant I looked up in my mirror and commented that there was a Sunbeam behind us just like mine."

YOUR HEALTH/Dr. Walter Alvarez

Losing the Sense of Smell

Quite a few readers have written to me over the years to complain that they have lost their sense of smell, and this annoys them because it takes pleasure from eating. They wonder why they lost their sense of smell and they ask if there is any way in which they can get it back.

I recently read an excellent article on this subject by Robert Schneider, who says that the physicians will be interested first to find out whether the loss of smell is in both nostrils, or in only one. He says that most patients with a loss of smell cannot identify the smell of coffee, but they can respond to ammonia.

However, when the trouble comes from hysteria and is physically produced, neither odor is recognized. Also, neither odor is recognized by a patient with severe wasting and crusting of the entire inner lining of the nose.

Sometimes the patient's history tells more than the physical examination. In some cases, the loss of smell is life-long, and the person was born with it. The skull should be x-rayed, to see if there is any sign of a tumor in the brain or in the nose.

Also, one must find out if the loss of smell came after a bad auto-accident, or a fall on the head, or some disease in the nose, or some marked change in personality or judgment. When I hear that the loss of smell came suddenly one day after a bad dizzy spell, my opinion usually is that the person suffered a little stroke.

In rare cases, the patient has lived in an environment that contained irritants that may have led to atrophy of the inner nose lining. A neurologic examination should be made. Naturally, the nature of the treatment depends on the cause of the condition, if that can be determined. Nothing can be done if the person was born with a lack of development of the smelling mechanism. Sometimes if the loss of smell followed a blow on the head, in time some recovery will take place, but a very severe injury is likely to cause irreversible damage.

Evidence Act Under Study

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is studying the possibility of amendments to the Evidence Act, Justice Minister Otto Lang said today.

He was replying to a question from Derek Blackburn (NDP-Brant), who asked whether, in view of increases in child-beating, the government is considering amendments to allow spouses to testify against their mates.

Under existing laws, spouses cannot give evidence for the prosecution in court cases.

WORLD COLLEGE BID FAVORED

The family of the late Lester B. Pearson supports a proposal for making the planned United World College at Pedder Bay a memorial to the former prime minister, over a proposal from a Toronto group working for a United Nations university in memory of the statesman.

The Toronto group has proposed naming its planned institution after Pearson, but has promised further consultation with his family before a decision is made.

Mrs. Maryon Pearson said Monday when told of the Toronto group's plans, "I felt my husband was more interested in getting the Canadian United World College started in Canada."

(Pearson was honorary chairman of the national committee for the UWC, scheduled to open on Vancouver Island in 1974.)

Bertram Butler, site committee chairman for the proposed UWC, said today he was delighted that the Pearson family wanted to have his memory perpetuated at the local college.

"It is quite typical of Mike to have thought of this," he said, "and of his family to respect his wishes in this regard."

He said that the Canadian UWC was a project that was "dear to the heart" of Pearson.

Col. Robert Houston, a member of the Toronto group, said "the Pearson family feels obliged to point out that the project is closest to his heart."

He said that the family is concerned that fund raising has already started for the Vancouver Island college and that one or more institutions in Pearson's memory would diminish public interest.

Rev. Ernest Howse, who heads the Toronto group, says the Pearson family and others will be consulted further before a decision is made on naming the proposed United Nations university after Pearson.

Dr. H. L. Keenleyside, a Victoria member of the United Nations organization, says that the United Nations university would be more in keeping as a Pearson memorial.

"My personal preference," he says, "is the United Nations university, rather than the United World College. The United Nations institution would be the first of its kind in the world."

"I don't want to depreciate the UWC in any way but it would be a very small school compared to the United Nations university, which would lay great emphasis on the work of the United Nations and probably concentrate on post-graduate studies."

Keenleyside pointed out that, while Vancouver Island's Pacific Rim College would have a maximum of 300 students between the ages of 15 and 18, the United Nations institution would be probably one of the most important universities in the world.

Legal tangles are still being ironed out prior to the UWC obtaining possession of the 74-acre site on department of national defence property.

Denigis Young, executive director of the Capital Regional District, said today he is still waiting for UWC officials and the Crown Assets Disposal Corporation to consult the CRD on the transfer.

"We wrote the United World College people on this last November," he said, "pointing out to them, as well as to Crown Assets, that the CRD is 'very sympathetic' to the college proposal the CRD must be consulted on land use in the district."

He said that while the CRD must be consulted before any further developments can take place.

Saanich Staff Briefed on Noise Crackdown

Senior Saanich staff today were briefed on enforcement of the municipality's new Noise Suppression Bylaw, given final reading at the statutory meeting of council Jan. 8.

Administrator John Tribe said the meeting with solicitor D. M. Patterson was called to "make sure we're all going the same way on this."

Mayor Hugh Curtis said the informal discussion would be of assistance to those concerned with receiving complaints of noise.

The bylaw, which was given some priority by the mayor in 1972, is not a cure-all for complaints of noise in the municipality, Curtis said. "Hopefully it will be of assistance to persons genuinely disturbed."

Patterson said if the experience of Vancouver is acted upon, futile prosecutions initiated by crank complaints will be avoided.

It had been found in Vancouver, where the bylaw is similar to the new Saanich law, that if complainants are required to gather support by means of names on a petition, a more substantial case may be made and a choice of witnesses is provided to the prosecutor.

"When people complain, if they are not prepared to come forward and say so," any subsequent action is jeopardized, Patterson said.

3 JUVENILES FACE CHARGES

Three juveniles will be charged shortly with a series of break-ins at two Goldstream Ave. businesses, Colwood RCMP said today.

The boys, one aged 13 and the others both 14, have been questioned by police in connection with break-ins at Langford Building Supplies, 940 Goldstream and The Warehouse, a discount grocery.

The grocery store was broken into four times between Nov. 17 and Jan. 14 and $400 was stolen during those two months.

No Agreement On Panel Format

City council zoning committee members couldn't reach agreement today on how to establish an advisory design panel.

They were in general agreement with committee chairman Ald. Mike Young that the panel should be composed of professionals and involved laymen and should inspect designs of any building projects worth more than $100,000.

But they balked at Young's vision of a representative panel drawn from many areas of city government.

Ulster To Map Future

BELFAST — Ulster is to have an interim assembly which will help to decide the future government of the embattled British province.

The British government has now firmly decided on this, and its long expected white paper will do no more than lay down Britain's minimum demands. It will leave many of the most important details to the elected representatives in the new assembly.

This assembly, elected under proportional representation, may even be given a good deal of power to begin with. This would be over relatively uncontroversial matters like health and education, and Britain would hand over more power only when the assembly had reached full agreement on both sides.

The British now have ruled out completely any idea of imposing their own thoroughgoing solution on Northern Ireland, and only a remarkable turn of events could change their mind. Nor do they have any intention of producing a fully detailed settlement and then putting it to a referendum.

This idea, recently suggested by some moderate Unionists, is seen as cumbersome and impractical — and likely to be unpopular with the Catholic minority.

The government's minimum demands will probably include power sharing between the sectarian communities, security remaining in the hands of Westminster for the immediate future, and some kind of council of Ireland to create an institutional link with Eire. It will insist on these and the final work will remain with the house of commons.

Plant-Closing a Boost For Saanich Bakery

Production of bread at McDonald's Bakery in Saanich will double almost immediately as a result of McGavin Toastmaster's decision to close its bakery in Nanaimo.

Manager John McDonald said there are 90 employees at the plant at present and this would be increased to more than 100 by year's end as a result of the greatly increased production.

In Vancouver, McGavin Toastmaster's president David Devine said McDonald's would "bake bread to serve all the company's customers on Vancouver Island, including Duncan, Port Alberni, Parksville, Courtenay, Nanaimo and Campbell River."

McGavin's purchased McDonald's Bakery Ltd. on Nov. 24 and the owner, John McDonald, was appointed manager.

Devine said 20 of McGavin's 57 employees up-Island would be let go as a result of the closure of the Nanaimo bakery.

Some of the 20 have applied for work at McDonald's in Saanich and their applications are being considered but no additional staff have been hired at the present time.

Devine said the McGavin's building in Nanaimo would be retained as a bread distribution depot and all sales personnel would be retained in Nanaimo and other up-Island communities.

He said the decision to close the old Nanaimo plant followed the November purchase of McDonald's newly-renovated and expanded premises at 524 Cuddehul.

"The decision to centralize our operations in Victoria was quite unexpected," Devine said. "When McDonald's became available, we purchased it and then we realized it was far more efficient to operate in its new facilities than in the old facilities in Nanaimo."

Prior to McGavin's decision, bread was imported to Victoria from the Nanaimo bakery.

Now McDonald's will ship bread up-Island and may export surplus production to Vancouver as well.

Devine said that as well as doubling bread production, McDonald's will move into specialty products like hot dog buns and hamburger buns.

First production of these buns came out of the ovens some six weeks ago and they will be produced in volume in Victoria in summer to cater to the tourist trade.

He said that while production would double, staff would not double because of the highly-efficient nature of the new plant.

McDonald's completed a $1 million expansion of the plant just prior to the sale. Some $300,000 was spent on acquiring nearby land and $200,000 was spent on construction and new equipment.

Meanwhile, the closure of the Nanaimo bakery operation brought into the open a tug-of-war between Teamsters and local 468 of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International Union.

The Teamsters have just organized the McDonald's operation, including the bakers. Nanaimo bakers were members of the bakery and confectionery workers' union, which had sought certification at McDonald's.

Hugh Comer of Vancouver, secretary of the baker's local, said the union was considering "some action" to protect the jobs of the 20 Nanaimo bakers let go by McGavin's.

He said the union was considering asking Nanaimo residents to boycott McDonald's bread until the men are hired back.

"However, we have not made any decision about a boycott call," he said. "This thing has hit us so suddenly. We must do something to protect the jobs involved."

He said in effect the jobs of 20 people have been transferred from his union to the Teamsters.

If 20 bakers are hired in Victoria they would join Teamsters, not the bakery and confectionery workers' union.

However, the company did not expect to hire that many bakers right away.

OTTAWA WARNS TRAVELLERS

OTTAWA (CP) — Travellers in some countries who are accused of lawbreaking may be presumed guilty until proven innocent and the Canadian government cannot intervene in the regular course of justice.

This and other pointers are contained in a new booklet being sent out with new passports by the external affairs department.

The booklet says Canadian representatives abroad can help Canadians in trouble by getting them lawyers and notifying friends or relatives back home.

But they cannot provide legal advice or interfere with local legal systems.

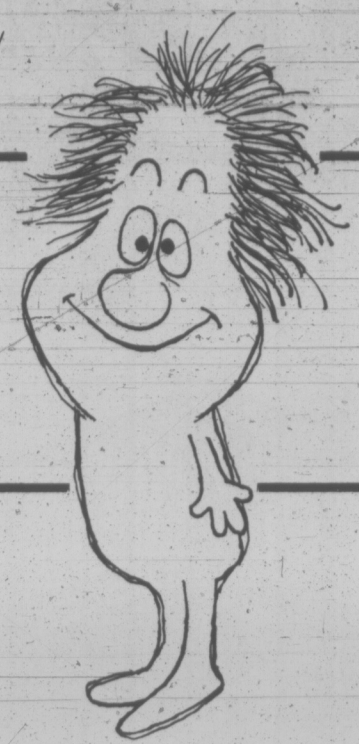

Moreover, Canadians born abroad or whose parents hold foreign citizenship may find themselves citizens of the countries they visit.

That means they may be subject to obligations, including military service, imposed by those countries on their nationals.

For information on this and other issues — such as visas, inoculations and currency restrictions — the booklet advises travellers to consult foreign embassies or high commissions in Canada.

The booklet also contains customs hints and a directory of Canadian diplomatic missions abroad.

Tory Rift Refuted By MLA

A Colonist report claiming a rift has developed in the Oak Bay Progressive Conservative Association executive has been denied by Oak Bay MLA G. Scott Wallace.

Wallace said the item, reporting the resignations of three members of the 10-member executive, contained "some pretty damaging comments and ridiculous quotations" with little or no substantiation.

One unnamed person quoted in the report charged Wallace with being too dictatorial and refusing to listen to the grass roots of the party.

To that Wallace replied: "These accusations are without foundation and really it's a storm in a teacup and a great deal of publicizing of what is a very minor matter."

Wallace said it appeared to him that two people on the executive had a "difference of opinion" with the other members.

But all decisions of the executive were majority decisions, he said, and to suggest that he had at any time ignored the democratic process or acted dictatorially was absurd.

"It is really unbelievable that people should make these statements when there are no facts to back them up," he added.

Association president Mark Preston said he had been in touch with most members of the executive and had not found "one dissenting voice."

Even one of the retiring officials mentioned in the report had since indicated she was a "100 per cent supporter" of Scott Wallace, he said.

English Conceal Separatism: PM

OTTAWA (CP) — Separatism exists throughout Canada but the difference between French and English-speaking separatists is that the former are open and candid about their aspirations, according to Prime Minister Trudeau. "Quebec separatists express their views openly, they say they no longer wish to be governed by the English. In the other case, it's not quite as clear."

EQUAL TIME BID

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Adam and Eve don't belong in science textbooks, the California education board has ruled.

But the doctrine of divine creation may get equal treatment with the theory of evolution in new social science texts.

The board's unanimous decision Thursday against including the biblically-oriented doctrine of special creation in elementary science texts appeared to end a controversy that had involved several scientists.

The decision leaves a watered-down version of Charles Darwin's theory of evolution as the only explanation for man's origins offered in new science texts intended for 3.3 million California school children next fall.

But a motion submitted by board member John Ford said discussions concerning representative views on origins must be among the criteria used by the board in deciding which new social science texts to accept for use in 1976.

Ford, a San Diego physician, has been one of the chief backers of the doctrine of special creation in new science texts intended for the first eight grades.

But scientists told the board the creationist theory was unscientific and should be kept out of science texts.

Darwin was the British scientist who published a work in 1859 holding that man evolved from simpler life forms. Creationists say man and other animals were created essentially as they are now.

In a wide-ranging interview on Politique Atout, a weekly CBC French-language program dealing with political issues, the prime minister criticized "fanaticism and separatism that exists throughout Canada."

Trudeau said that during last October's federal election campaign, "certain persons argued about the power of French-speaking cabinet ministers" and said: well, they have too much, let's strip them of a little.

The prime minister did not think this "minority" reaction was the only reason for the outcome of the federal election, but that economic problems, such as unemployment and inflation, also worked against the Liberal party.

Separatists outside Quebec say they do not want to be governed by the federal government as long as the other ethnic or linguistic group holds the power, Trudeau said.

Quebec separatists, on the other hand, think that French-Canadians in Ottawa cannot hold on to political power and therefore Quebec must separate.

The prime minister said separatism was a minority sentiment in Canada that could be defeated with logic and a call to unity.

On another matter, he said Finance Minister John Turner would present the federal budget within a few weeks, adding that the budget would be an important test of Parliament's confidence in the government.

Trudeau said a bill would be presented in the House within the near future to increase old age pensions. He said adoption of the bill would depend on the attitude of the opposition parties.

GARDENING

Cold Gives Chance To Sow Some Dreams

While the soil is still wet and chilly in the garden, we might do better indoors working on a summer dream or two. Nearly every new gardener reaches the stage of wanting to grow annual flowers from seed instead of buying the dozen or two plants in May.

If it's petunias, zinnias and snapdragons you want in the garden, you will be more successful with their early flowering if you continue buying them as plants and spend effort on less ordinary things.

The thrill of growing flowers from seed can be satisfied by sowing seed of things which you cannot possibly buy as plants. There are many, for gardeners are notoriously slow to buy plants if the names are not familiar, so the growers are reluctant to grow them.

This tendency keeps you from enjoying flowers delightfully different in form, color and general habit. If you grow them, you not only improve your garden picture, but raise your own opinion of your gardening prowess.

In a seed catalogue, then in a garden encyclopedia with pictures, look for some of the following names as examples of annuals. Don't be afraid of the unknown names; each has a real meaning as you will soon find out as your interest increases.

Dimorphoteca is a South African daisy to sow in a seed-box in a coldframe by mid April. Use the smallest size in peat pots for the seedlings do not like transplanting. Colors are orange, buff, white.

Annual dianthus plants are less known than the Carnation group of dianthus, but give a quick return in brilliant color though most have no perfume. These are short bushy plants if transplanted early into flats for growing into young plants in a coldframe.

If your taste runs to something startling in Salvia, get seed of Purple Flame and start it in a warm greenhouse during March.

Plants are only 12 to 15 inches high. You may find an odd red "rogue" appear, due to breeding difficulties, but in most gardens it would merely serve to emphasize the purple.

Other names to look for in annuals are Lavatera with large pink mallow flowers; Trachymene is unusual as a four-footer with blue lacy heads of tiny flowers; a trio of low growing blue annuals is Phacelia, Nemophila and Nierembergia (the last needs sowing indoors or in warm greenhouse by end of January).

Schizanthus is the delightful Butterfly flower, flowering profusely in early summer with a bit of light dappled shade; and Cleome is a stalwart spreading annual with peculiarly interesting bright pink heads, showy enough for public park display.

Most of these seeds need thinking about now, then sowing in March or April indoors or in a greenhouse. They must be well grown to give satisfaction; they need the skill of an interested gardener, and that person is you. Am I right?

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Two partners were arguing over having stopped at game on a hand where a slam was in the cards. The player who had quit despite his partner's slam try, advanced the usual fallacious argument: "Well, it was the rubber game, and I thought we might as well take our sure profit. A bird in the hand, you know, is worth two in the bush."

His partner (South) looked sorrowfully at the score-pad, which showed him to be a heavy loser. "Not," he said, "when you need two birds."

Here is the deal that provoked the argument. Our complaining South gave the hand an excellent play to bring home twelve tricks.

Both sides vulnerable.

North deals.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Five of ♣.

South's four-club "cue bid" was, of course, a slam try; had he been interested in merely a game, he would have bid four hearts instead. North, feeling that he had bid his hand to the hilt when he jumped to three hearts, "signed off" at four hearts. South appreciating that North had passed originally, decided to settle for a game.

After winning the opening trump lead with his six-spot, South cashed the trump king. Next came a spade to dummy's ace, after which a spade was ruffed. This was followed by the ace and king of clubs. A third club was now ruffed in dummy, and the board's remaining spade was next trumped in the closed hand. Spades had just been

Pot Smokers Harvest Farmers' Hemp Crops

HAIRY HILL, Alta. (CP) — Because of its popularity with thieves who process it into marijuana, many farmers in this district have quit growing hemp for salad oil.

A large number of residents in the district, 80 miles northeast of Edmonton, are of Ukrainian origin and the growing of hemp, in addition to opium poppies, was a tradition brought with them from Eastern Europe.

One farmer, who asked that he not be identified, said 25 years ago almost all the farmers in the area grew hemp, but now there are only about 50 per cent of them that still plant it.

The hemp plant, in addition to yielding marijuana and hashish, is an oil-seed crop such as rapeseed and flax that provides what the farmer said is salad oil better than any that can be bought in a store.

He said he started growing hemp 25 years ago and built an oil press to process his and his neighbors seeds.

But he quit last year when his crop was stolen and, when reporting it to the RCMP, was told not to grow any more because it was illegal.

"This year I made oil from flax and rapeseeds, but it's not as good and I'm not going to grow hemp for somebody else."

The farmer said there had been a lot of trouble because "once they (the thieves) know you've got it, they never leave you alone."

"I had trucks driving through my swaths this year by people poking."

He said not much hemp seed is needed "Two bags full will give enough oil for a year, but it's a lot of work."

In Edmonton, the RCMP drug section said the seeds from the hemp have shown no narcotic content and while many of the farmers grow the plant illegally, no charges have been laid.

Mayor Treated

REGINA (CP) — Mayor Harry Walker, whose facial expressions seemed to cast some doubt that the operation is totally painless, Monday underwent an acupuncture treatment for a knee ailment while 150 persons observed the demonstration.

"I'll bet that no other mayor had this done before," Mayor Walker said as he rolled over to allow Dr. K. Y. Leung of Vancouver to insert a needle into the mayor's exposed right hip.

Help for Metis

SLAVE LAKE, Alta. (CP) — Premier Peter Lougheed said Sunday his government will launch a $1 million program during the 1973-74 fiscal year to provide housing for Metis people.

The premier was speaking at a meeting of 500 Metis people of mixed Indian-white ancestry representing 72 locals of the Metis Association of Alberta after hearing a brief presented by the association.

Appeal Loses

CALGARY (CP) — Residents of the city's northeast area have failed for the second time to stop construction of the Alberta-Livestock Co-Op Agri-mart.

The Development Appeal Board voted five to four in favor of the development Saturday after hearing a lengthy argument against the proposal by John Schmal, president of the citizens' committee opposing the agri-mart.

Inefficiency Cited

REGINA (CP) — Health Minister Walter Smishek said Monday requested hospital budget increases were cut back this year because of "some disturbing instances of hospital inefficiency."

Smishek told a news conference the over-all increases requested in hospital expenditures would have amounted to 18 per cent but that was cut down to nine per cent.

Raid Error Apology Rejected

BOSTON (AP) — State public safety commissioner John J. Kehoe Jr. publicly apologized Monday to a family whose house was mistaken for a drug source and raided by police last week.

"This is a very regrettable situation, and I would like to extend my public apologies to Mr. and Mrs. Pine and their daughter, Melody," Kehoe said in a statement.

The Pines, however, have rejected the apology and plan to take legal action.

State police, federal narcotics agents and officers from area police departments raided the Pines' area home last Wednesday.

The building the officers had a search warrant for was next door to the Pine home.

The Pines said 15 police officers, with guns drawn, broke down their front and back doors, pushed them around and held them and their daughter for 15 minutes until the mistake was discovered.

Police Probing Hamburger Heist

Thieves who broke into a fish and chip shop late Sunday must be getting tired of cheeseburgers by now.

City police reported today that thieves stole six pounds of hamburger, four pounds of cheese slices, a loaf and a dozen buns from a Craigflower Road restaurant between 8 p.m. Sunday and 11 a.m. Monday.

FROM HORSE'S MOUTH

LUCERNE, Que. (CP) — The local police driving record has prompted one town councillor to suggest a return to saddle horses.

Milton Moore, head of the town police commission, told council Monday that police car drivers have had so many accidents in the last 16 months that cruisers have an average life-span of about two months.

Councillor Henri Laflamme said the town may not be able to get insurance for the cruisers because of the high accident rate.

"Perhaps we should go back to saddle horses," said Councillor Brian Smith.

WASHINGTON-B.C.

Joint Curbs on Spills

Special to the Times

OLYMPIA, Wash. — B.C. and Washington state have agreed to establish the legislative machinery to co-ordinate pollution control in border waters, it was announced here Monday by Premier Dave Barrett and Washington Governor Dan Evans.

The announcement was made at a joint news conference following meetings between the two cabinets.

Barrett and Evans said each jurisdiction had agreed to establish a legislative committee to co-ordinate pollution control methods and standards, particularly in dealing with oil pollution control.

Barrett, who is accompanied by nine members of his cabinet, will conclude the two-day visit to the state capital with an address today to the Washington state legislature.

In announcing the agreement, the premier conceded the province is far behind Washington in its approach to pollution control.

"We do not have the tremendous facilities that Washington state has, in being able to call on a well-equipped and well-staffed coast guard," said Barrett.

"We are essentially still a pioneering province, which does not have the capability of mobilizing its resources that Washington state or the American federal government has."

"We intend to establish a legislative committee in our own legislature to immediately catch up to where Washington state is," said Barrett.

Despite the consensus between the two leaders on a method for joint action to deal with potential oil spills, there was an obvious difference of opinion on the threat posed to the west coast by shipment of Alaskan oil to the refinery at Cherry Point.

Evans said in effect he believes shipment of oil to the Washington state refinery has already reached its maximum capacity. The volume of oil shipment into Puget Sound would probably not appreciably increase even when Alaskan supertankers start plying the coast.

The Republican governor suggested the "major share" of Alaskan shipments will go to other American ports, possibly on the east coast.

"If some of it (Alaskan oil) comes in to the Pacific Northwest or Pacific northwest ports, it will not be so much in the nature of an increase but a replacement for foreign crude ... that may be coming in at the present time."

"I do not anticipate ... that there is going to be a massive increase in shipment of crude oil into the Puget Sound basin to Arco's refinery or any other ... as a result of completion of the Alaskan pipeline," Evans said.

The governor told the news conference that his administration would look skeptically on any effort to establish refinery capacity to market petroleum products outside the Pacific Northwest. He said the refinery at Cherry Point is a facility to serve only the northwest market.

Replying to questions from reporters, Barrett conceded the implication of supertanker shipments from Alaska was an area of disagreement between himself and governor Evans.

"I feel a terrible sense of frustration in dealing with my own federal government, in the lack of its aggressiveness in dealing with this problem," the premier said.

"I can appreciate Governor Evans' situation and his problems, but ours is different and our problems are different."

"We have a dreadful fear of a major catastrophe striking

LUNOKHOD PROWL MOON

MOSCOW (CP) — An unmanned Soviet spaceship made a soft landing on the moon today and put out a 1,848-pound moon rover that sent television pictures back to the earth.

The Soviet news agency Tass, said the spaceship, Luna 21, landed on the eastern fringe of the Sea of Serenity, inside the Lemnigher Crater.

The self-propelled Lunokhod 2 rolled down the gangway to the lunar surface and moved about.

Its running gear and control systems were checked by the ground crew, and television pictures of the landing stage and the lunar landscape were received," Tass said.

Lunokhod 2 will continue the work of Lunokhod 1, a 1,663-pound moon vehicle that spent 10 months exploring the lunar surface in 1970-71.

Lunokhod 2 now will remain stationary until Thursday, recharging its chemical power supply with the help of a solar battery. Then it will go ahead with its program.

Ottawa Accepts Postal Settlement

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government announced Monday its acceptance of a conciliation board proposal for settlement of the long-simmering postal dispute.

The board recommended a 65-cent-an-hour increase in postal wages, which now are $3.69 an hour for postal clerks and $3.54 an hour for letter carriers.

The Conservatives also suggested the auditor-general, watchdog over government spending, be called before the committee to give his views on proper use of special warrants.

A decision on this will be made later.

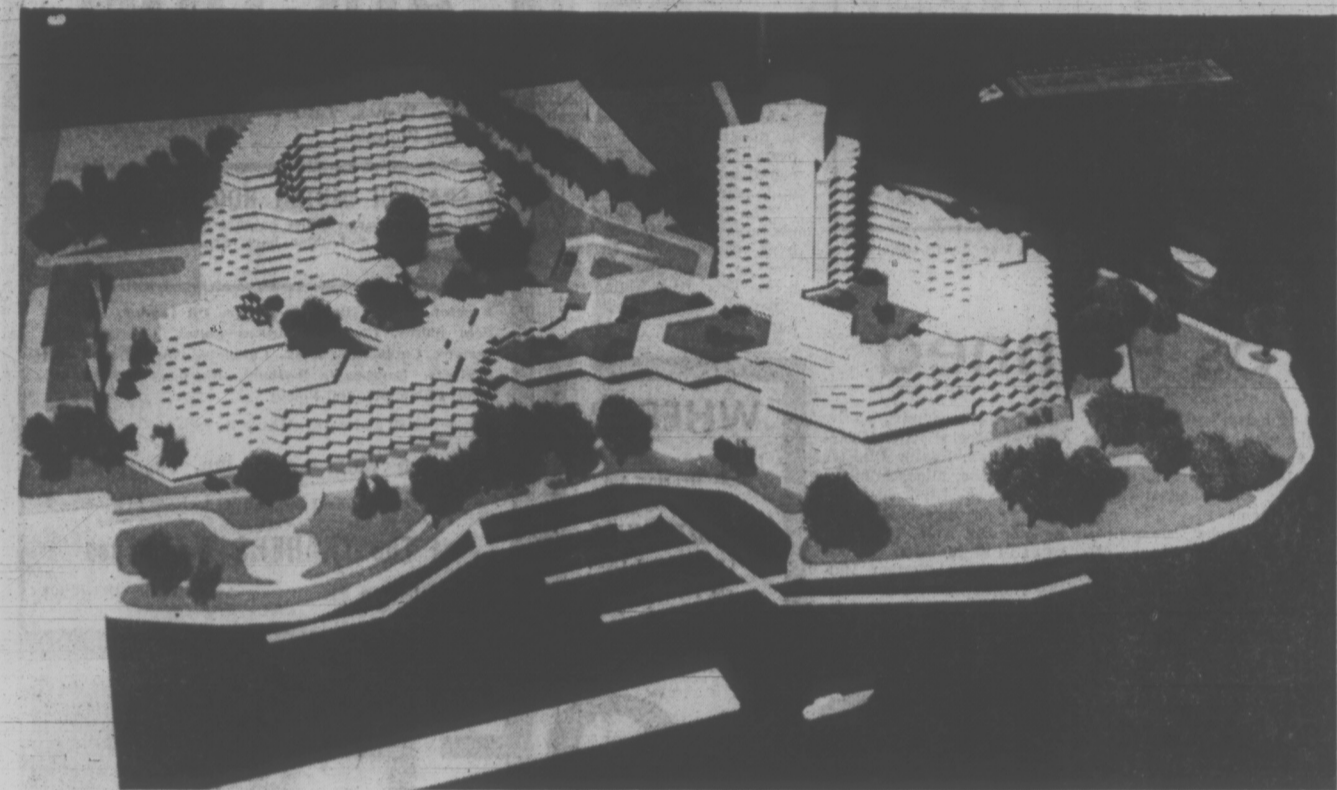

On Monday, the New Democratic Party maintained its relationship with the government, assuring defeat of a Conservative non-confidence motion despite Social Credit support.

The 31-member NDP Leader David Lewis called the motion, attacking government handling of unemployment and inflation. Conservative shadow-boxing.

Lewis said it did nothing to assure that a Liberal or Conservative government would do anything about high food costs.

The NDP would wait until the government had a chance to put legislation before Parliament before making any move that might spell its end.

Social Credit leader Raul Couette said his party supported the motion because it had "something definite, something precise" to say.

TELEVISION THEFT AN INSIDE JOB

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Doris Coulson was so annoyed at the fact her two sons, aged eight and five, wanted to watch television all the time that she threatened to send the set back to the store.

So when two men came to the Coulson home and said they wanted the TV set, the boys told them to take it.

"I was stunned," said Mrs. Coulson when she reported the theft to police.

Alberta Ladles Royalty Cash

EDMONTON (CP) — Homeowners, renters and municipal governments will be the beneficiaries of a new property tax reduction plan announced today by the Alberta government.

Under the plan the average homeowner will get a tax rebate of up to $216, renters will be able to deduct up to $100 from their provincial income tax and municipalities will receive more assistance money than they ever have before.

The province will pay all the costs of hospital and local health unit requisitions, 90 per cent of all municipal social assistance costs and provide $14.5 million in unconditional assistance grants and $20 million in incentive grants to municipalities.

The money for the tax reduction program — $46 million in the first year of operation — will come from increased oil and gas royalties.

The government earlier this year increased crude oil taxes by $70 million a year and took steps to increase the wellhead price of natural gas, a move which was also designed to increase the provincial take from the petroleum industry.

Premier Peter Lougheed told a news conference that the plan, put together after a year's study by a government committee, is designed to "offset the impact of inflation," particularly on middle and lower-income families.

Cheap Energy Days Over

TORONTO — The price of natural gas will rise sharply in Ontario as backlash from the current U.S. energy crisis slops over into Canada, a legislature committee warned in that province Monday.

The committee also warned that the days of "abundant, cheap energy" are over for Ontario which is dependent on out-of-province sources for 80 per cent of its energy supplies.

As one result of the committee's warnings, Premier William Davis will fly to Edmonton Wednesday to discuss a proposed hike in natural gas

KEY BISCAYNE — The White House today virtually ruled out a Vietnam ceasefire agreement before President Nixon's inauguration on Saturday.

Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler told reporters "the president is not going to address the nation" on the subject of Vietnam this week.

Dampening reports from Saigon and elsewhere that signing of a ceasefire was imminent, Ziegler also said Henry Kissinger, Nixon's chief Vietnam negotiator, would not be returning to Paris this week to resume talks with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho.

There had been reports from Saigon that the ceasefire agreement might be initiated on Friday, the eve of the inaugural, and that Nixon would make an announcement to the nation.

Ziegler refused to discuss the current status of negotiations, except to say that they still were in progress.

Ziegler said: "We have an agreement with the other side not to discuss the substance of the negotiations and we're sticking by that agreement."

Ziegler had said Monday that Kissinger would be returning to Paris "in the relatively near future."

He said today he stands by that statement even though he ruled out a Kissinger return to Paris this week, and added that he did not mean by that to suggest Kissinger necessarily would go to Paris next week.

Public Opinion Sought

CIL Properties Ltd. today unveiled several alternative proposals for redevelopment of the Inner Harbor property now occupied by Bapco Paints. Above is one possible project.

Developers of the $10 million hotel-apartment project to be built on the Bapco Paint site on the Inner Harbor regard this week's unveiling of their various design ideas as a kind of "advance public hearing."

Plans, sketches and models of several development concepts drawn up by CIL Properties Ltd. will be presented Thursday and Friday at the McPherson Playhouse lobby, with a view to getting maximum public reaction.

"Really what we're doing is reversing the usual procedure," vice-president Stanley Kwok told reporters today.

"We're saying to the public long before we present any firm proposal to the council, these are some of our ideas — what do you think of them?"

Kwok and CIL Properties president John D'Eath gave a preview of the public presentation at a press conference at The Empress.

D'Eath said the various schemes which will be on display are not a definitive list of alternatives, but only very tentative proposals to give some idea of what could be built on the seven-acre site and to find out what the public's preferences are.

Bank Job Blown By Buck

AMHERST, N.S. (CP)

There was a break-in at a Royal Bank of Canada branch here early today, but police gave up their chase when the culprit raced towards a marsh at the edge of town.

Police said they got a call from the bank caretaker when he showed up for work this morning and found the plate glass front door smashed.

But all police found in the building when they arrived was a badly frightened deer. The animal eluded his captors and escaped through the broken door.

One comment was: "We don't know whether it was a buck looking for dough or a doe looking for bucks."

City Core Traffic Sparks Clash

By ROLAND MORGAN
Times Staff

Will central Victoria cope with cars and trucks the way U.S. cities have, or will further-reaching European ideas prevail?

Businessmen in the central district badly want to see the traffic jams outside their doors unchoked — right now — by a complete system of one-way streets and more central parking.

A strong new group on city council favors a long-term approach involving ring-roads, mini-buses and traffic-free central streets.

This crucial clash of ideas emerged again at a regular meeting of the year-old Central Business District Advisory Committee on Monday.

City Traffic Engineer David Campbell, at the committee's invitation, told the dozen representatives it would cost about $250,000 to complete a one-way traffic system including Wharf, Government, Johnson and Pandora.

Most of the expense is buying corner lots so that corners can be rounded off to filter turning cars, he said.

The "number one hang-up" is buying an Imperial Oil gas station at Wharf and Government, Campbell said.

He said a new intersection system feeding Johnson St. Bridge traffic into Johnson and Pandora would be complete by May. It will be adaptable to either one or two-way traffic on Government and Wharf.

Mayor Peter Pollen said an offer of $270,000 had been made for the gas station site, which adjoins city-owned land on both sides (tourist office and former Ocean Cement lots) and would complete a section of the proposed Inner Harbor facility.

The deal has still not been made, Pollen said.

Later the committee was told by architect Zale Tanner, commissioned by the Downtown Business Association, that underground parking for up to 275 cars could be hidden

under the Ocean Cement-Imperial Oil site, if it became available.

Tanner showed sketches of a paved area at street level with cars underneath, and the view from the harbor dressed by raw stone walls and steps.

Committee member Reg Hind said the area could be used for a bus tour base in the summer, taking buses off the Causeway in front of The Empress hotel, and as a farmer's produce market in the winter.

Pollen blasted the committee for "thinking purely as businessmen" and making a "typical response" to immediate traffic problems.

At the same time he denied that he or council had actually impeded the installation of one-way pairings.

He said he wanted balanced development, and the committee should not try to pressure council, but offer advice and help in that direction.

"I think one-way streets are going to kill your downtown," Pollen said. "You're responding purely as businessmen."

You haven't made any reference to what we're going to do about the inordinate traffic in lumber going through town to Ogden Point. This one-way system will just encourage that.

"You must have another dimension," he said.

He told the committee that ring road plans were "going full blast" and they could relieve traffic pressure within 18 months.

Hind replied that the committee was trying to deal with the immediate problem of traffic jams.

He said the mayor's references to ring-roads, pedestrian areas and bus services were "all off in the future."

"This is ideal," he said. "I think we all agree with it. But what do we do right now?"

The committee agreed to recommend the one-way systems again (it recommended them before, in June, 1972) and to show its underground parking lot idea to architect Arthur Erickson, who is making a design for the Inner Harbor facility.

Mayoral Backing Expected For School Board Stand

SECOND SECTION

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

The four Greater Victoria mayors are expected to take a joint stand Wednesday in support of the Greater Victoria School District, where blue collar workers have been on strike since Friday.

The mayors — Peter Pollen of Victoria, Hugh Curtis of Saanich, Frances Elford of Oak Bay and Art Young of Esquimalt — are to meet privately just before the inaugural meeting of the Capital Regional District board.

Curtis has already made his position clear — he is in "solid support" of the school district.

"I certainly want to make it very clear I offer full support to the Greater Victoria school board in this very unfortunate dispute, particularly unfortunate because it interferes with education," he said.

The school district offer of a nine-per-cent raise in each year of a new two-year contract was "more than generous."

"As awkward as it is for parents, for students and for others, I just don't see how the board could accede to anything approaching the union demands without setting off a local government wage spiral that would be really staggering in its costs," he said.

Curtis views the dispute between the school district and the 268-member Local 382 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees as a "curtain raiser" for other negotiations under way between CUPE locals and municipalities.

One of these disputes, involving outside workers for the city of Victoria, has already proceeded to the mediation officer stage after only two meetings between the two sides.

DOOR SLAMMED ON FULLER BID

A request by the Fuller Brush Co. Ltd. for relaxation of licensing requirements for salesmen received the brush-off by Oak Bay council's finance committee today.

The company asked the committee to consider waiving the required $1,000 cash deposit for each salesman in favor of a $1,000 surety bond.

Ald. Shirley Dwell observed that all licensees in the municipality should be treated the same and the committee agreed to let the present regulations stand.

Municipal administrator E. H. Hart observed: "This is a greater deterrent and helps keep transient high-pressure salesmen out."

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

Junior high school principals are meeting with school board officials today in hopes that junior high schools can be opened for work assignments by the end of the week.

All junior high schools, with the exception of the small Dean Heights school, were closed when CUPE maintenance workers went on strike last Friday.

While most elementary schools remained open and arrangements were made for all high school students to attend Victoria Senior Secondary, the school board decided to simply dismiss all 7,000 junior high students for fear of vandalism, as experienced by other districts in similar situations.

"Also we only have seven supervisory personnel to handle 54 schools," district superintendent A. J. Longmore explained, "so we decided to work from the known to the unknown."

"Now we're going to meet with all the principals to look at all the angles," Longmore said, "and decide if it's feasible to open the junior highs for certain periods of time."

Peter Boldt, principal of Oak Bay Junior said he hoped the schools could be opened for about two hours, at least every second day, so students could get assignments from each subject teacher.

"I'm really worried about this situation," Boldt said. "The teachers are here and doing odd jobs but after a couple of days it will be the students who suffer."

"I don't think the children will be cold for just a couple of hours," he said, "because they'll be moving around so much."

School board chairman Peter Bunn said some of the greatest support for re-opening the schools had come from Arbutus Junior secondary where parents have banded together and offered to keep the school running.

Bunn said the whole school system "seems to be in very good order today."

"Things are looking very positive today," he said, "and schools are functioning much closer to normal than on Monday."

Seven elementary schools, closed Monday because of older heating systems, were opened today mostly by special arrangement.

George Jay elementary reopened on a regular basis at 9 a.m. today.

At the following schools, pupils except kindergarten children, were too report at 10 a.m. for assignments and instruction regarding attendance for the remainder of the week: Lampton, South Park, Macaulay, Oaklands, Sir James Douglas and Margaret Jenkins.

Victoria senior secondary was again open for all Grade 11 and 12 high school students and staff, with Oak Bay, Mount Douglas and Mount View students reporting at 9 a.m. and Esquimalt, Reynolds and Victoria high students coming at 1 p.m.

Principal Duncan Lorimer said he was "very pleased" with the co-operation and attitude displayed by the students Monday as they crowded into the central school to receive assignments and instruction from their respective teachers.

Equal Pay Campaign 'Smoke Screen Issue'

Equal pay for women is a "smoke screen issue" in the strike by school board maintenance workers, board chairman Peter Bunn said today.

Bunn pointed out that the 1971-1972 contract with the Canadian Union of Public Employees Local 382 created the position of matron and the union agreed then it was to be a different duty with a different pay scale.

The issue was put to a test in June, 1972, when a matron complained she was being discriminated against in conversation of the Human Rights Act.

Bunn said John Shepley, director of the Human Rights

Act, made a decision in favor of the board on Aug. 3.

The decision read: "The investigation revealed that male janitors perform physical work not required of janitresses therefore the difference in rate of pay is based on factors other than sex and does not constitute a failure to comply with section four of the Human Rights Act."

Board spokesmen said matrons are not required to do the following functions performed by janitors: scrubbing floors, cleaning outside windows, cleaning light fixtures, changing light bulbs, working nights on being responsible for the security of schools.

Alex Markides, spokesman for the union, said women's rights is one of key issues in the contract dispute because women do identical work during the day shift, and receive $2.85 an hour compared to $3.60 an hour received by men.

"They changed the ball game," Markides said, arguing that in the last contract matrons were supposed to work from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. but had been actually been starting as early as 6:30 a.m.

Some of the matrons, he said, were "red circled" when the classification was introduced — that is, their pay rate which at the time was higher than the matron's rate was pegged and not allowed to rise until the matron rate reached that level.

$250,000 Sits and Waits For Pulp Mill Smell Solution

Somewhere in that maze of red tape, ledgers and accountants known as "the provincial treasury," the princely sum of $250,000, lies fallow.

To the layman, $250,000 translates into winning the Irish Sweepstakes twice on the same day or being able to pay off the mortgage on not only your own house, but the houses of all your neighbors as well, with enough left over to buy the most expensive sports car available.

The money sits, in a special fund all its own, having been established in 1970 by the former Social Credit administration.

The loot was originally intended to entice researchers in the province to come up with a solution to the increasing problem of pulp mill pollution in some of B.C.'s mill towns.

The $250,000 was to go to "the first individual or company who successfully eliminates the air pollution from a B.C. kraft pulp mill" according to specifications and conditions set down by the provincial resources department.

Former resources minister Ray Williston had outlined the details of the contest to reporters on March 24, 1970, setting a deadline for establishment of a special committee in early 1972 to evaluate the applicants of the contest.

Needless to say, the contest never got off the ground. When early 1972 rolled around, Williston said there had been a considerable amount of interest shown in the contest, but that it would be a while before an evaluation committee would be established.

That "while" has turned into a long time, taking us up to the present.

Monday, Resources Minister Bob Williams had little to say about the award, except that he does not think handing out money is the way to solve this type of problem.

One of his deputy ministers, Valter Raudsepp, told the Times earlier that he was awaiting direction from the minister on the contest but that he did not think the minister had been advised about it since the NDP government had taken office in September.

And so the money sits. What happens with it from here is anyone's guess. But it is likely that it will dissolve, like just so many taxpayers' dollars, into that great wasteland known as "general revenue," to be divided up once again in someone's fiscal plans.

MILLIONAIRE'S WIFE FREED

Marilyn Lastman, wife of flamboyant Toronto millionaire Mel Lastman, Monday said that she had been abducted for 10 hours earlier in the day after being told that her husband had suffered a heart attack.

She did not report how she eluded her kidnappers and according to Toronto police, no ransom was paid.

Lastman, who made his money by staging wild publicity stunts for his chain of discount appliance stores, is also mayor of a Toronto suburb.

IRA Orders MacStiofan to Give Up Long Fast people

DUBLIN — Former Irish Republican Army leader Sean MacStiofan, today ended the prison hunger strike he had vowed to maintain until death.

On IRA orders, MacStiofan started taking nourishment for the first time in eight weeks.

He started the fast last November in protest against a six-month sentence for membership of the IRA. Until then, he was chief of staff of the IRA Provisional wing which was most of the guerrilla warfare in Northern Ireland.

Sources say his status in the movement is badly reduced and he has been replaced as chief of staff by a so-far-un-disclosed figure.

In ordering MacStiofan to end the fast, the Provisionals said it could no longer serve any useful purpose.

"You will recruit black married couples to be tested for sickle-cell anemia. I want you to recruit them by the hundreds to determine if they are carriers of the disease."

If Wilcox fails to carry out the mission, he can expect to go to jail, Sepe warned.

Sickle-cell anemia is a hereditary blood disease present in about one out of every 500 newborn blacks. Doctors estimate as many as one in 10 blacks suffer from the malady.

MIDLAND, Ont. — Dr. Peter Brasher, a local surgeon who refused to fill out the long census form in 1971 claiming that some questions were "impertinent", was fined $150 or 10 days in jail Monday.

He was convicted of withholding information by refusing to complete the census report.

Oliver let the car pass, saw it had Quebec plates, and trailed it to a drive-in restaurant where he called police.

"That's my car," Oliver shouted again, noticing some of the custom features identical to those he had installed on his car.

Police arrested Pierre Bledau of Ste. Therese, Que., and charged him with larceny and possession of a stolen vehicle.

VANCOUVER — Violet Marie Flewin, 54, and Mary Swanson, 70, both of Vancouver are to receive compensation under the provincial Criminal Injuries Compensation Act, it was announced Monday.

Both women were attacked and robbed in separate incidents. Mrs. Flewin receives $907 while Mrs. Swanson was awarded $250.
